GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

"Weak and irresolute is man;
The purpose of today,
Woven with pains into his plan,
Tomorrow rends away."

A kid fielder in a third-base box wins a nice game for Washington, but this probably won't stop Clark Griffith from fretting over the lost ball.

Bishop Darlington says that whisky drinkers reform, whereas beer drinkers seldom do. And as for tea and coffee tipplers, they are hopeless!

Well, ladies and gentlemen, here's a lot of very dry reading in The Post this morning.

With the kick absent from the hearing the case of the prohibition-ists tastes like 1-2 of 1 per cent.

"Personal liberty" may be "a blot on the nation" but it must be admitted that at the rate we're going in another two years you'll need the Lick observatory telescope to see it.
"Out, damned spot!"

But is McKinley's defeat going to make Senator Borah or Jim Reed
the Illinois "favorite son?"

With five murderers put to death in one day in various parts of the country the government makes a record in law enforcement that should—but won't—have a most salutary effect.

M. Peret is now convinced that the franc can't be stabilized until the war debts are funded. Some people who are deaf to logic and reason can be pretty quickly convinced by practical demonstration.

Here's an unusual tale in the morning's news, reminiscent of the "Covered Wagon" days. The old-fashioned prairie fire that used to take a toll of three immigrant "schooners" and a herd of antelope now causes $1,000,000 damages.
We move forward!

Magnus Johnson bulges out in a new spot as candidate for Governor of Minnesota. Any place, just so it's a job.

Mauna Loa shoots off a couple of 200-foot skyrocket and her lava stream obliterates a great forest.
As Cowper would say:
"My future years are all hasting away,
And I must ere long lie as lowly as they.
With a turf on my breast, and a stone at my head,
Ere another such grove shall arise
in its stead."

This report that the Antisaloon league may ask for the removal of Gen. Andrews for saying that if the people could have beer they wouldn't drink bootleg is obviously an error, but there are some indications that it may order it.

Mr. Fenning's friends at the Capital apparently forget that nothing so what the Congressional appetite for an investigation as an appearance of reluctance.

Chicago court holds that Secretary Hoover has assumed more power over the once free air than has ever been granted to him. Congress should attend to this oversight at once.

What Capt. Cates is probably trying to say is that it's contrary to the Articles of War for a subordinate in the marine corps to go around smelling the breath of his superior officers.

Palm Beach conference finds that the gamblers have lost interest in Florida, and it might have added that most of 'em have also lost the principal.

With President Coolidge coming out for farm relief legislation the prospect of Congress coming out of Washington by July goes glimmering.

In more than a century the Supreme Court has climbed only one flight of stone steps and it's high time that Moses led these distinguished jurists out of the wilderness of the Capitol into a nice pink marble building of their own.

Spending that $110,000 of murder-money from Tehran for the education of Persian students is carrying altruism a bit far when you consider that Mr. Imbrie's widow got only $60,000.

Veterans' bureau hospitals next year will use 226,000 tons of coal, and yet some taxpayers fool themselves into believing that the war is over.

This proposed treaty with England whereby Britain is to agree to prohibit the exportation of liquor to rum run sounds as if maybe Uncle Sam might have to pay too stiff a price.

DRY FORCES FIGHT ANY COMPROMISE ON WET PROBLEM

Clergy Ask That Fair Trial for Prohibition Be Given.

CATHOLIC SECRETARY CITES PROSPERITY

Bishop Holds Beer Drinker Harder to Reform Than Whisky-Taker.

By ALBERT W. FOX.
With an imposing array of statements, resolutions and arguments, mostly from church leaders, the drys rallied to the defense of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act before the Senate committee yesterday.

It was a presentation which made it unmistakably clear that no thought of compromise or modification is to be seriously entertained by the Antisaloon league, or the various organizations working under it guidance.

From the standpoint of teamwork between the prohibition organizations and unanimity of opinion among them, the hearings yesterday demonstrated all the dyes could have desired. Furthermore, they checked the challenge of the modificationists to refute facts and statistics by simply ignoring them in most cases.

Reed Questions Data.

Edward Keating, former member of Congress from Colorado and an ardent prohibitionist, announced flatly during the afternoon session that statistics were the invention of his satanic majesty.

"Why bother about facts and figures cited by the opponents of prohibition when we know what the situation is," he contended.

Thus the case yesterday was composed chiefly of arguments all to the same end and all opposing modification. Occasionally specific data was supplied to controvert the contention that the Volstead act had wrought havoc among the young and had brought increased drunkenness, but this nearly always resulted in questions by Senator Reed which disturbed the smooth running of the testimony.

However, this cross-examination of witnesses by the senator from Missouri provided periods of excitement otherwise entirely lacking in the hearings.

Sensors Harrell and Walsh insisted on both afternoon and morning sessions, and this, in one sense, detracted greatly from the force of the prohibitionists' presentation.

It stretched the testimony out unduly, and as most of this testimony was along the same line, there developed a sameness which would have been avoided by a shorter session.

Cites Savings Increase.

During the afternoon Senator Reed was unable to attend, and Senator Harrell at one point read the Daily Oklahoman and smoked his cigar while the witness was reading his statement. Vacant chairs in the audience appeared for the first time since the hearings began. Senator Reed returned

Lava From Mauna Loa Spouts 200 Feet High

Hilo, T. H., April 16 (By A. P.).
Two flaming red geysers spouting lava 200 feet into the air and visible almost 50 miles away, was the latest display of temperament today by Mauna Loa, while streams of lava continued to flow toward the ocean.

Dr. J. A. Jagger, in charge of the volcano observatory, said one stream of lava would pass by a village church, which is now in its path. The flow of lava already has blotted a great forest from the landscape.

Blizzards in Vermont And New York State

St. Albans, Vt., April 16 (By A.
P.).—All April weather records for northern Vermont were broken today when a northwest blizzard swept this section after two days of near-zero temperatures. This afternoon the snow continued unabated, driven by a fierce wind.
Five feet of snow still covers the ground in many places.

Malone, N. Y., April 16 (By A.
P.).—A blizzard raged in this section today, leaving drifts of heavy snow. The fall here was three inches.

Antisaloon League Move To Oust Andrews Planned

Wayne B. Wheeler Says Committee Today May Ask His Removal for Testimony Given at Senate Hearing. Considering Action on Buckner Also.

The Antisaloon league may ask for the removal of Brig. Gen. Lincoln T. Andrews as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement following his admission before the Senate hearing that the sale of small beer under government regulation would aid enforcement of the Volstead act, Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the league, said yesterday.

The committee of the league considering the statement of Gen.
Andrews will meet again this afternoon to make its final decision.
In the meeting yesterday the testimony of Gen. Andrews and his statement in regard to beer were studied. The league now merely has the question before it "What shall we do about it?" according to Mr. Wheeler.

The decision today may be disapproval or denunciation of the statement of Gen. Andrews, or an official request by the league that he be ousted from office.

The committee also has under consideration definite action in the case of District Attorney Emory R.
Buckner, of New York. Mr. Wheeler said. He added that there would probably be "some developments" in this regard today.

Mr. Wheeler expressed complete surprise at Gen. Andrews' statement, and said:
"He certainly did not take into consideration the statement of Attorney General Sargent recently made on the subject that the prohibition enforcement official who publicly states that he doesn't thoroughly believe in the law weakens his own position in attempting to enforce the law."

"Further, his statement was based on no facts whatever, but on the flimsiest kind of guesswork."

AMERICANS IN HONDURAS VICTIMS OF TERRORISM

Threats of Assassination in Wake of Extortion, but Officials Defy U. S.

ONE FOREIGNER IS SLAIN

(Special Cable Dispatch.)
Belize, British Honduras, April 16.—American and other foreign concerns and citizens are the victims of a reign of terror and censorship in the republic of Honduras, Central America.

The American companies operating in Honduras are the chief objects of persecution. They, being big companies and strong, can carry a large burden, so the idea seems to be to pile it on. These companies have had to pay pretty dearly for their privileges. And, after having paid, they are made, if possible, to pay and pay again.

On April 8 Mr. Link, an American employee of the Standard Fruit Co., at La Ceiba, received a letter asking for employment, with a threat of assassination if the caption were not granted. Mr. Brown-son, of the same company, received three similar letters. The latter went to the American consul, who took the letters to the governor.

The governor said he was not in a position to do anything. The consul suggested that he would request the American government to send a gunboat to La Ceiba to safeguard American lives and property, to which he received the following reply:

"You can do as you please. The bay is quite ample for one or more of your war vessels, but I'll make them respect the sovereignty of Honduras."

On April 6, Manlio Cazarrelli, a prominent business man, principal

PRAIRIE FIRES KILL 3; MUCH DAMAGE DONE

$1,000,000 Loss in 3 States; 2 Others Have Bad Forest Blazes.

St. Paul, Minn., April 16 (By A.
P.).—Three deaths, nearly a score of farm buildings destroyed, thousands of acres burned over and a monetary loss estimated at from $500,000 to $1,000,000 was the total of grass and prairie fires in the Northwest yesterday. Considerable live stock, poultry and farm machinery were reported destroyed in North Dakota.

Spokane, Wash., April 16 (By A.
P.).—With record hot weather for April prevailing in the Pacific Northwest, fire fighting crews are battling more than half a dozen forest blazes in northern Idaho, western Washington and British Columbia.

E. C. Pulaski, district forest supervisor, reported a blaze 10 miles west of Wallace, Idaho. C. By-rum, secretary of the Washington Fire association, reported fires on the Cowlitz river, above Toledo, on the National Park highway south of Morton and in Whatcom and Snohomish county.

Parents, 4 Children Are Drowned in Flood

Edmonton, Alberta, April 16 (By A. P.).—A family of six, father, mother and four children, were swept to their deaths in a flood of the Athabasca river Thursday, according to word today to the Alberta provincial police.

CODE NOT ENFORCED PROPERLY. CHARGE OF TRAFFIC COUNCIL

Hearing Is Asked Before Action Is Taken to Cut Regulations.

DECLARES POLICEMEN NOT TRAINED RIGHTLY

Recommendations Are Made; More Power for Director Is Advocated.

Charging that the traffic regulations in this city have never been enforced properly and that blame for the muddled traffic situation here cannot be placed on the length of the traffic code, members of the traffic council at a meeting in the Mills building last night asked for an immediate audience with Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning before he attempts to strike out any of the present traffic regulations.

The council decided to take this action after Commissioner Fenning ordered Traffic Director M. O.
Eldridge and Maj. and Supt. of Police Edwin B. Hesse to study carefully the present traffic code to determine whether any of the regulations are unnecessary and to present their views before the commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday.

Pointing out that 50 per cent of the more than 11,000 arrests for traffic violations in March were for minor offenses, W. Pearce Rayner, representing the Washington Board of Trade, said: "There is nobody in the police department now who knows how to teach policemen how to enforce traffic regulations."

C. P. Clark, representing the American Automobile association, said that the strange method of enforcement of the traffic regulations here makes it impossible to determine whether the city has too many regulations.

Arrests Exceed 4 Cities.

Mr. Rayner presented figures which showed that arrests for traffic violations for March exceeded the combined number of arrests made in Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo and Milwaukee during the same month.
He pointed out that the combined population of these cities is 2,509, 000, while only 500,000 persons live here.

Arrests for overtime parking, violation of the light regulations and miscellaneous parking regulations numbered 3,887. Mr. Rayner said. He charged that the campaign for enforcement of traffic regulations made by the Washington police department was aimed almost entirely at the petty offender.

The council last night ratified seven recommendations which were made at the last meeting in an effort to relieve the traffic situation.
All of the members, which is composed of representatives from all of the larger civic organizations, reported that their organizations had acted favorably on the recommendations.

The recommendations are:
1. That the entire matter of traffic enforcement, including location

Only American-Owned Horse to Win English Classic, Falls in Race.

Bogside, Scotland April 16 (By A. P.).—The long career of Sergeant Murphy, first American-owned horse to win a Grand National steeplechase in 84 years, is at an end.

The Sergeant, who won the Grand National at Liverpool, in 1923, under the colors of Stephen Sanford, Jr., of Amsterdam, N. Y., slipped on a turn in the West Scotland steeplechase and broke a leg.
He was destroyed.

Sergeant Murphy was to have been retired last year but he carried his 16 years so lightly, even giving weight to horses half his age, that his owner decided to give him another season. Mr. Sanford, when a student at Cambridge university, purchased Sergeant Murphy for about $10,000 to use him as a hunter, but after his victory in the Grand National placed his value at $100,000.

Jay-Walkers' Critic Killed by Street Car

Chicago, April 16 (By A. P.).— William Rockwell, 50, believed to be from Schoolcraft, Mich., was fatally injured when struck by a street car last night.

In a notebook, scrawled in pencil, was a linerick recounting the story of a "jay-walker" who was knocked down by a street car while crossing a street.

WAR CLAIMS BILL STUPENDOUS STEAL, GARNER DECLARES

His Attack Surprises, as House Expected No Opposition.

TREADWAY DENIES MOVE SOON FOR VOTE

Senator King Holds Measure Would Make U. S. Pay for Germany's Wrongdoing.

Unexpectedly the Mills alien property bill was described as "the most stupendous steal that has ever been suggested in the history of America" in the House yesterday by Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking minority member on the ways and means committee.

The Texan's attack came as a great surprise, since every one, Republican and Democrat alike, had believed that the bill would encounter no opposition in the House.

"If the program said to be authorized by the administration is to be followed, within a short time, a week or ten days, you will be called upon to vote on the most important piece of legislation outside of the tax bill that will come before this Congress," said Mr. Garner. "It is the most stupendous steal that has ever been suggested in the history of America. I want to suggest to the membership that it examine the hearings in order that you may be informed in reference to the bill—the Mills bill."

Outlines Provisions.

"It has four major provisions.
One is to return all of the alien property now in the hands of the alien property custodian to the German nationals. The second is to pay the mixed claims and the third is to pay the German nations for damages that occurred by reason of our taking their property, and the fourth is for an issue of $230,000, 000 in bonds to meet the indebtedness."

Representative Treadway, Massachusetts, ranking Republican member present, replied:
"I think the gentleman from Texas is very premature in the statement that he is making to the House," he said. "The bill has not come before the ways and means committee for a vote."

"I did not say that they had voted to report it," asserted Mr. Garner.
"But it has considered the bill and completed the first section of it."

"When the gentleman says the bill will come before the House within a week's time, he is a prophet and a false one," Mr. Treadway declared.

SERGEANT MURPHY, JUMPER, IS KILLED

Cavalry Officer Was Accused of Attempting to Rob Theater Offices.

Salinas, Calif., April 16 (By A.
P.).—Lieut. Clarence P. Aiken, of the Monterey, Calif., Presidio, was found not guilty on a charge of attempted burglary by a jury in superior court here tonight. The charges grew out of the attempted robbery of the Monterey Theaters company.

The verdict was reached after five minutes deliberation. Aiken was accused of having entered the theater building at Monterey January 4, to rob a safe. Policeman Fred Eisenhardt testified he had arrested Aiken and Sgt. Charles Barnes in the building, but that Aiken escaped. Barnes turned State's evidence and testified that he and Aiken planned the robbery.

J. A. Bardin, chief defense counsel, in closing arguments for the defense, said Aiken would resign his commission whether he was convicted or not. The defense decided upon an alibi for acquittal.

11-STORY PLUNGE KILLS BEEKMAN, TENNIS STAR

Former Interscholastic Title- Holder Was Under Care for Nerve Disorder.

OF OLD NEW YORK STOCK

Special to The Washington Post.
New York, April 16.—A Leonard
Beekman, tennis star of Princeton, 18, descendant of Dutch patroon stock and member of one of New York's earliest families, leaped to his death today from the bathroom window of his suite on the eleventh floor of the Hotel Roosevelt. His mother, Mrs. Edgar Beekman, of Bronxville, was in the suite at the time.

Beekman had come from Philadelphia April 4 to be treated for a nervous disorder. A. B. Carver, of Yonkers, a Princeton classmate, was staying with him, and his parents had a suite on the floor below.
When Carver left at 7 a. m., Mrs.
Beekman went to her son's room.
He greeted her cheerfully, and, as she turned on the heat, he got out of bed, went into the bathroom and locked the door. She next heard a scream in the inner shaft. Beekman's body landed on a glass me-zanine roof. Window ledges it struck broke the force of its fall.

Beekman was to have been examined today by Dr. C. J. D'Alton to determine whether he should enter a sanitarium. He was 30 years old, lived at the Princeton club in Philadelphia and was in the metalstamping business there. He captured the national interscholastic tennis title in 1914 at Newport, and at Princeton was captain of the tennis team. In tournament play after graduation he ranked on the fringe of the first ten.

Beekman was the fourth person of prominence in eight days to meet death here in this tragically spectacular manner.

Jewel Thieves Evade Traps for Bandits

New York, April 16 (By A. P.).
Four armed robbers shoved their way through a crowd at Grand and Chrystie streets today and shot
Joseph Flyer, a jeweler, twice, escaping with $7,000 worth of jewels he was carrying. They overlooked additional jewelry worth $18,000 which Flyer carried in an inside pocket. His wounds are not serious.

The jeweler's store is equipped with a burglar siren and tear gas bombs, but the robbers today waited until he had stepped out onto the crowded sidewalk before attacking him.

LIUTENANT CLEARED OF BURGLARY CHARGE

Before the investigating committee 20 years ago, he pointed out, he said that Congress could legislate on the subject if it wanted to. In the absence of it, he proceeded.

He denied that he has ever selfishly obstructed the transfer of guardianship and said many members of Congress would recall that he had often assisted them in such transfers.

The commissioner asserted that Director Frank T. Hines, of the veterans' bureau, was manifestly misinformed when he submitted figures to Mr. Blanton that Mr. Fenning had received the maximum of 10 per cent commission "in practically every case for which he is acting as guardian or committee."

Records at the courthouse will show, he said, "that with respect to a very considerable portion of the funds received from the veterans' bureau I received a commission of 5 per cent, this also covering and including services as counsel and overhead expenses, such as clerical help."

He made no mention of his testimony before the investigating committee before the investigation was concluded upon an alibi for acquittal.

HOUSE PARTY FIGHT FORMS AS FENNING INQUIRY IS ORDERED

Democrats Back Blanton and Seek to Involve Coolidge.

27-PAGE STATEMENT REPLIES TO CHARGES

Retirement of Sergt. Lee Is Declared to Be Cause of Move on Official.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.
The case of Commissioner Fenning developed into a party fight at the Capitol yesterday, as the House District committee voted to investigate him.

Democrats entered the fight in formidable array, charging that the administration was seeking to halt a fair inquiry, and they laid plans to link up the White House with the matter.

High lights were:
A 27-page statement by Mr. Fenning, which was attacked as an "admission of a highly unnormal practice and an attempt to gloss over it," was refused insertion into the record. Chairman Madden, of the appropriations committee, sought permission to block it inserted. The Democrats halted it.

Quorum Is Prevented.

Democrats appeared in strength at the meeting of the House veterans' committee, prepared for an investigation, but the Republicans prevented a quorum.

After considerable jockeying for advantage, the District committee adopted a resolution sponsored by Representative Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, for an investigation by a sub

Put to Death Together at Chicago.

KILLING OF 2 HUSBANDS OF DAIRY MAID DENIED

Man, on Gallows, Says He Is Not Guilty—3 to Die in Utah by Lethal Gas.

Chicago, April 16 (By A. P.).—Raymond Costello and Charles Hobbs, negro, stranglers of women, were hanged together here at 9:21 o'clock this morning.

Costello calmly smoked a cigarette while the straps were being adjusted and relinquished it reluctantly only when the white hood was placed over his head. He said he had nothing to say.

The negro prayed incessantly while the straps, shroud and hood were being adjusted and until the double trap was sprung.

Costello was convicted for attacking and strangling 16-year-old Madeline White. He pleaded not guilty and reiterated his statement today.

Hobbs freely admitted that he strangled his landlady, Betty Barnett, negro, to steal 75 cents.

Costello bitterly arraigned his attorney for failing to obtain a last minute stay of execution.

Both men slept several hours last night, but refused to eat supper or breakfast.

Instigated Two Murders.

Edwardsville, Ill., April 16 (By A. P.).—Emil Fricker, former wealthy farmer, convicted of instigating the murders of two successive husbands of the dairy maid with whom he was infatuated, paid the penalty today with his life.

"I am not guilty," Fricker declared, when asked if he had any statement to make before the hanging.

Fricker, who was 45 years old, was hanged for directing the murder, September 15, 1924, of John Nungesser, second husband of Minnie Schlitt, dairymaid. The slaying was actually committed by Jacob Landert and Eldo Ernie, farmers, now serving life sentences. They declared that Fricker hired them, for $250 each, to shoot Nungesser to death.

Fricker also was convicted of plotting the murder, in 1920, of Robert Kerl, first husband of the dairymaid, four weeks after their marriage. He was found dead in his field from pistol wounds, and the killing passed for suicide until after Nungesser was slain.

Mrs. Nungesser was married for the third time to Charles Lang, farmer, last February shortly after the Illinois supreme court had affirmed Fricker's death sentence. Gov. Small yesterday refused clemency.

This was the fifty-first execution at which Philip Hanna, 51, wealthy farmer of Epworth, Ill., had volunteered his services. Hanna's philosophy is, "If men must be hanged, let's do a good job."

Salem, Oreg., April 16 (By A. P.).—Archie B. Cody was hanged at the State prison today for the murder of his wife.

Smuggled Crown Traced To Wilhelm's New Wife

Berlin, April 16 (By A. P.).—New clues have been uncovered by Prussian state detectives in the hunt for the famous jeweled crown of the late Queen Augusta, first wife of Kaiser Wilhelm II, which mysteriously disappeared from the royal palace on Unter Den Linden more than three years ago.

The information, police said, virtually established the fact that the beautiful crown was smuggled out of the palace in 1922, and that Princess Hermine von Reuss wore it at Doorn, Holland, when she married the former monarch in exile. The crown belongs to the government.

A former court jeweler told the police that the crown was brought to him by a man who represented himself as an agent for the kaiser, who asked that it be made smaller. The jeweler said the agent called for the crown after it had been remodeled.

Three to Die by Lethal Gas.
Reno, Nev., April 16.—(By A. P.)—Three men are to be executed at the state prison at Carson next morning by lethal gas, the dates of execution having all been reset this week by trial judges after denial of appeals and of petitions for rehearing by the state supreme court.

Guadalupe Acosta, convicted of killing a deputy sheriff in Yuma county, and Staunko Kujich, who killed a young girl at Elly when she refused to marry him are to die during the week beginning May 16.

The third man, John H. Randolph, convicted of killing his aged mother in Reno, is under sentence to die during the week beginning May 9, but the board of pardons has been urged to commute his punishment to life, both the prosecuting attorney and trial judge having signed the petition.

SYSTEM OF FREEZING HUMAN TISSUE TOLD

Pathologist, at Operating Table, Can Thereby Aid
the Surgeon.

Dallas, Tex., April 16 (By A. P.).—Development of a system of freezing human tissue so that it may be examined while the patient is on the operating table was declared here today at the national convention of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists.

Dr. Herman Spitz, of Nashville, Tenn., told of this new aid to the surgeon. For illustration, a patient who exhibits a lump which may be a tumor or cancer. A small part of the tissue is cut off. The pathologist, working alongside the operating table, then freezes this bit so it can be cut into a very thin slice, places it under the microscope and in a few seconds is able to inform the surgeon whether he is dealing only with a tumor or the more malignant cancer.

The surgeon then knows how to direct the knife.

Colonel Sober When He Left Home; Appeared Drunk in Hour, Says Capt. Rice.

NOT COERCED, ASSERT TWO MARINE OFFICERS

Drinks Served in Butler's Honor Too Weak to Hurt, Court-Martial Is Told.

Marine Base, San Diego, Calif., April 16 (By A. P.).—Denial that Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler had coerced junior officers into making statements that Col. Alexander S. Williams was intoxicated at a Coronado hotel the night of March 6 was made by two witnesses at the colonel's court-martial here today.

Col. Ellis B. Miller, commander of the Fourth regiment of marines, who assisted Gen. Butler in the formalities leading up to the filing of charges against Col. Williams, asserted that there had been no coercion and his testimony was substantiated by Maj. Ross Rowell.

Col. Miller revealed that he had persuaded Gen. Butler to withdraw from the original charge the specification of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman."

Not Under Duress.
That he did not consider himself under duress when he submitted a second written statement to Gen. Butler describing the defendant's condition at the hotel was the testimony of Maj. Rowell. Earlier in the trial the defense had sought to show that Gen. Butler rejected the statements first submitted to him and demanded that his subordinate "come clean" and admit in new statement that Col. Williams was drunk.

Capt. Charles Rice, assistant to Gen. Butler's chief of staff, testified that the cocktails served at Col. Williams' could not possibly have caused the intoxication of anyone there. "Of those cocktails we drank at Col. Williams' home," you could have held a dinner party without noticing it," he told the court. The captain did not deny, however, that Col. Williams was intoxicated when he saw him at the hotel an hour after the dinner party at the hotel," he said, "he undoubtedly had the appearance of being drunk. I was astounded, for when the colonel got into my car to go to the hotel he seemed perfectly sober."

Statement Ruled Out.
"The funny part of it all," the witness continued, was the fact that while he and other guests were drinking cocktails at the colonel's home he did not see the colonel drink any, and even overheard someone say: "Why, colonel, aren't you drinking anything this evening?"

Capt. Rice finally volunteered the opinion that perhaps the colonel may have found a bottle somewhere and "taken something straight," which caused him to "crack all of a sudden," just like that.

This testimony was stricken out after long argument between opposing counsel.

The military tribunal which yesterday tore the lid off the cocktail court-martial in order to look into allegations of "beating" by Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, today recalled Capt. Clifton B. Cates, defense counsel, to the stand. Capt. Cates yesterday contradicted Gen. Butler's sworn testimony that Cates had told him Col. Williams was drunk.

Cates yesterday insisted his words had been "drunk or sick," not "drunk," as reported by the general.

Rear Admiral Thomas Washington, president of the court, directed Cates' attention to another part of the disputed interview with Gen. Butler, in which Gen. Butler quoted Cates as saying: "I didn't smell liquor on his breath, but of course you know the reason why."

At the time, the general said he took this to mean Cates himself had been drinking and, therefore, could not smell liquor on another's breath.

Had Smelled No Liquor.
"Did you, or did you not say that to Gen. Butler?" asked Admiral Washington.

"In a general way, that was what I said, but—"

"Answer my question, Capt. Cates," the admiral's tone was crisp and imperative.

"That is not exactly what I said, sir."

"Then tell us exactly what you did say."

"I said to Gen. Butler: 'I didn't smell liquor on his breath, as you well know.' Because I had previously told the general I smelled no liquor on the colonel's breath, and felt there should be no need of repeating it."

"Did you say in either of your written statements submitted to Gen. Butler that you saw nothing abnormal in the colonel's condition?"

"No, sir. I said I saw nothing unusual in his condition."

Added Only One Phrase.
In an attempt to compare the first and second written statements of Capt. Cates, it developed the first statement had been destroyed after Gen. Butler returned it to the captain when he complained that it was "equivocating." And that "you go back now and tell the truth or you'll get into trouble."

Cates' second written statement was read. It was to the effect that "Cates had seen Col. Williams at the Hotel Del Coronado and that he appeared as a man sick, drunk or doped."

The captain was positive his first statement was exactly like the second, except for the phrase "appeared as a man sick, drunk or doped," which was added only after Gen. Butler had reprimanded him and sent him back to write a "true statement."

Men Search Ford.

Herrin, Ill., April 16 (By A. P.).—With troops patrolling streets in the vicinity, funeral services were held this afternoon at the First Christian church for Harland Ford, Mack Sismore and Ben Sismore, the three Klansmen killed in Tuesday's election disorders.

Four clergymen officiated. They were the Rev. J. E. Story, pastor of the church, where the funeral was held; the Rev. J. H. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church of Herrin; the Rev. L. E. Lee, pastor of the First Baptist church of Herrin; and the Rev. B. E. Green, pastor of the First Baptist church of Hurd.

The Rev. J. H. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist church of Hurd, was formerly editor of the Klan newspaper at Herrin, and was prominent during the Klan regime in Williamson county.

Odd Fellows in Charge.
The Odd Fellows lodge, of which all three men were members, had charge of the services. The small church was packed to capacity and many stood on the outside. It was announced this morning the services would be held at the First Baptist church, which is larger, but plans were changed again to hold the services in the First Christian church as originally announced.

The solemn service began with a short session today, heard two witnesses and adjourned until tomorrow morning. Richard Thompson, a miner, testified that three automobiles loaded with armed men drove up to the Masonic hall pooling place, in front of which the fatalities occurred, the men got out and started toward John Ford, former chief of police, reputed cyclops of the Herrin Klan now and a brother of one of the slain men. He said a man who, he believed, was Mack Sismore, fired the first shot, which killed one of two men who accosted Ford and searched him. Almost simultaneously, however, Thompson said, the other man fired a shot which wounded him. He said he did not recognize any of the men who got out of the cars.

No Officers at Pools.
Date McNeill, the other witness, testified in the main to the same effect. In the previous shooting at the Smith garage, he said, he saw 15 or 20 men bring toward the garage, the only one of whom he recognized was Bill Burton. He said he did not see any police or regular deputy sheriffs near the pools.

John Smith, Klan liquor raider, has sold out and left Herrin. It was learned today.

Some said Florida and some Kentucky, but whatever his destination, Smith lost no time in leaving the place where for nearly three years he had been one of the central figures in Klan and anti-Klan clashes.

His escape, which was aided by bullets in Tuesday's battle and in which seven men were killed August 30, 1924, was said yesterday to have been aided by the stock between them. Smith left town immediately by automobile.

Settlement Will Permit Ships

New York, April 16 (By A. P.).—The strike of 3,000 tug boat workers operating 400 tugs in New York harbor was settled in favor of the workers tonight at a brief meeting of representatives of the new boat exchange and of the Associated Marine Workers.

The settlement will allow a large number of steamers to enter and depart from New York tomorrow as scheduled.

Two companies agreed to sign one-year contracts with the workers, allowing increases of from $10 to $25 a month in wages, as against their demands for increases ranging from $10 to $50 a month.

The strikers won their demands for a straight 10-hour day with time and a half for overtime and triple time for holidays.

The men were ordered out suddenly last night when their leaders declared that the workers' demands had been ignored by the tugboat companies.

New York, April 16 (By A. P.).—The French liner La Bourdonnais, arriving tonight from Bordeaux, established two records when she docked unassisted by tugs and landed 47 passengers, 33 of them aliens, none of whom had passports.

The purser explained that a steward in throwing waste paper overboard, picked up by mistake an envelope containing the passports and dropped them into the Atlantic.

Immigration inspectors allowed the passengers to land after requiring them to give their histories, sign affidavits and pay $10 apiece for visas.

The liner's feat in docking without tugs was necessitated by her arrival a few hours before the tugboat workers' 24-hour strike ended.

Afterward he can, if he desires, utilize the parliamentary vacation for a flying trip to the United States, probably in June, on a similar mission.

PRESIDENT IN FACE OF PRESSURE, FINDS FARM AID NEEDED

Government Will Meet Wishes of Farmers, Is Indication at White House.

ADMINISTRATION AGAINST PRICE-FIXING PROPOSAL

Favors Creation of Federal Farm Board With Appropriation at Disposal.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

The administration will stand by its decision to aid the agricultural interests of the country, it was made plain yesterday by the White House spokesman.

This does not mean, it was indicated, that President Coolidge has changed his mind. It means he has decided that the pressure from the West is entitled to consideration, and that as far as possible the government will meet the wishes of the farmers.

There is opposition to the demands of the farmers and their representatives that the government should take the price-fixing bill, or that it obligate the government to handle the surplus on its own account.

The administration will back to the limit the creation of a Federal farm board which will do business with the cooperative organizations, and, as a result, furnish the money that is needed to carry out their programs. Should it be necessary, the government will place at the disposal of the farm board $100,000,000 for the purpose, and, as a result, take its chances on losing money.

Proposal Hoped For.

What is really contemplated is the recreation of the White House Corporation, under a different name, to take care of the wants of the farmers. The White House spokesman made it known he was hopeful that the price-fixing bill, introduced yesterday, would develop a proposal to which the President could commit himself.

In dwelling upon the Tinchin measure, the Presidential spokesman denied the revolving fund proposed to make loans to the farm organizations would be any more of a subsidy than the financial relief which the government already has extended to the banks through the Federal Reserve Board, and through the railroads through the direct agency of the Treasury and other means.

The President views the proposed revolving fund as a mere medium of helping the farm organizations financially until they are permanently established. His attitude in this respect is based largely on the previous experience of the War Finance Corporation in extending temporary relief to the farmers.

That the Western situation is developing somewhat out of hand, the Republican leaders have emphasized late yesterday when five members of the Republican House delegation from Minnesota, all potential factors in the coming campaign, served notice on Speaker Longworth, Floor Leader John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, and Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, that they "were tired of toiling."

Urges Immediate Action.

They added, incidentally, recalling another revolution which turned the political administration of the nation away from the Republic, that they were "tired of being kicked." In the delegation were Representatives Andrews, Clague, Furlough, Goodwin and Knutson. In their opinion, there is no use of trying to get away with suggestions that farmers will listen to the farmer while the existing conditions remain as they are at the present moment.

This was only an indication of how the straw is blowing. It became necessary almost immediately to placate this revolution, with the result that the leaders readily agreed that they would do all they could to get the agricultural legislation given preference.

Behind all this development is the effort on the part of leaders of both parties to make political capital out of the farm split. Last December the farm leaders were ready to go the limit to get their requests approved. Since then there has been a division, and every effort is being made now to get an advantage in the coming elections.

Buenos Aires, April 16 (By A. P.).—The foreign office is calling on Ambassador Pueyrredon at Washington, directing him to seek the assistance of the American authorities for a flight from New York to Buenos Aires, it was announced by two civilian aviators, Bernardo Duggan and Eduardo Olivero.

The aviators, who propose to begin their attempt on Argentine independence day, May 25, have already sailed for Italy to obtain a seaplane of the Savoia type.

DRY FORCES FIGHT ANY COMPROMISE

to the committee room at 4 o'clock and added a bit of excitement by asking a few pointed questions of Patrick Callahan, secretary of an association of Catholics, at Louisville, Ky.

Mr. Callahan had built up a good case and had sought to show that his association represented an important movement, that great prosperity had come to the people of his city since prohibition, that savings accounts had increased.

"You say your prosperity has increased?" asked Senator Reed.

"That's true of every city the size of Louisville in the United States, isn't it?"

"Yes; but I don't know about the ratio."

"Conditions in the city are better and the city folks are prosperous?"

"Yes."

"Farmers' Status Questioned."

"How about the farmers around Louisville; are they prosperous?"

Mr. Callahan said that the farmers there, as elsewhere, were "holering murder."

"Very well," continued Senator Reed. "Now, you attribute the prosperity of the city to prohibition; do you ascribe the impoverishment of the farmer to the same cause?"

Mr. Callahan did not reply to this. He said the farmers had had prohibition in Kentucky for some time. Senator Reed asked if he meant that the farmers had had prohibition in Kentucky for some time, and the witness replied that the State law, even before national prohibition, made it very difficult, if not impossible.

"Didn't your law permit the citizen to bring liquor into any part of Kentucky for his own use?"

"I believe so."

Senator Harrell at this point said he had arranged to adjourn as it was 4:10 p. m., but Senator Reed said he had a few more questions.

"Now you speak of bank deposits being about twice as high as before prohibition?"

"Yes."

"Haven't bank deposits increased everywhere since the war, as a general thing?"

"That's true."

"Figures Differ."

"Do you attribute the growth and prosperity of all cities in the country to prohibition?"

"No, sir," the witness added, explaining that he was attempting only to give some figures for Louisville.

"How many members have you in your organization?"

"Three hundred and twenty."

"Out of about 19,000,000 Catholics in the United States," added Senator Reed.

Mr. Callahan's figures as to the number of arrests for drunkenness in Louisville did not check up with Senator Reed's figures which the latter said were obtained from chiefs of police, but this matter was not pressed.

Just before Mr. Callahan took the stand there was a slight flare up to relieve the calm of the session when Julian Codman, counsel for the prohibitionists, challenged the right of William B. Forgrave, State superintendent of the Massachusetts Antisocial League, to file a large batch of sworn statements.

Mr. Codman said the modifications had been limited to the filing of sworn statements. The committee held the decision respecting Mr. Forgrave's statements in abeyance and excused the witness.

F. J. Harwood, moderator of the National Council of Congregational Churches, was the first witness for the prohibitionists. He said the great benefits had been derived from prohibition and he attacked the old-time saloon, saying that money that used to go into the saloon had been used to build homes and churches.

Men had formed the habit of drinking milk instead of beer, he stated.

Bishop Opposes Change.

Bishop James Henry Darlington, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, of Harrisburg, Pa., next took the stand. He was against any change in the Volstead act and said that prohibition was very well enforced in Pennsylvania. He added that church people were backing it universally, and added:

"I want to pay tribute to the Roman Catholic Church for what it is doing in aid of prohibition."

Bishop Darlington devoted much of his testimony to the evil effects of beer, as he stated, when compared with the effects of whiskey.

Whiskey drinkers reform where as beer drinkers seldom do, he said, adding that the process of intoxication through drinking beer was slower and deeper and more to be dreaded than intoxication produced by whiskey.

He painted a deplorable picture of conditions in Germany and especially in Munich, Germany, where he said beer had ruined the kidneys of the Germans. The average life of a German was only about 33 years he added, due to the fact that Germans drank beer.

Bishop Darlington then assailed the old-time saloon. Prohibition, he said, should be strictly enforced.

Charles H. Pennoyer, general counsel for the welfare department of the Universalist church, was the next witness. The liberty of the individual must not interfere with community liberty, he asserted. Prohibition should be given a fair trial, the witness added.

Gives Immorality Causes.

"Did I understand you to say that the increase in youthful immorality is not due to prohibition?"

"What do you mean by the new liberty?"

"Greater liberties in dress, in activities, greater inclination to talk about life problems."

Edward Keating, former Colorado Representative, and now connected with the publication "Labor," was the next witness.

"I'm not representing any organization here today," he said, "I speak for myself."

Mr. Keating then made a forceful presentation of his own views, pounding the table at intervals to drive his arguments home. He assailed the saloon and the corruption that he said went with it. He criticized the various modification proposals before the committee, especially the suggestion of Senator Bruce to have government regulation. This would mean that the government would become the greatest bartender in the world, he said.

Asks Militant Effort.

What the country needs, he said, was a militant determination to enforce the law. He mentioned $100,000,000 a year as a small expenditure to that end.

As the witness made it clear that he had been a member of organized labor for years, Senator Harrell asked:

"What is your judgment as to the statements of the representatives of Labor who have appeared before this committee?"

"These representatives, claiming to represent 25,000,000 American workmen, have demanded beer."

"I have no desire to enter into a controversy with the representatives of the American Federation of Labor," replied the witness.

At the beginning of the morning session, Senator Walsh read a newspaper clipping from the Montreal Star, which stated that Canadian bootleggers were underselling the government and that jail sentences for drunkenness had increased.

Sensors Harrell, Walsh and Goff were present and at 10:25 Senator Reed joined them. Senator Gillett was named by Senator Cummins, chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee, to take the place of Senator Means, who had been named by Harrell to make chairman of the subcommittee. Before leaving the committee room, shortly after the start of the proceedings, Mr. Harrell said he wanted it distinctly understood, in connection with his role of chairman, that he would not accept responsibility of writing a report on the hearings until he decided for himself whether he believed a report should be written.

Denies Failure.

William I. Haven, general secretary for the Bible Society of New York, was the first witness. He appeared for the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches.

The prohibition has not failed, but on the contrary is yielding results," he said. "It is succeeding better than any other program which has been tried to strike at the liquor evil."

Senator Reed smoked a cigar and read the Congressional Record while the witness read a long list of church people and clergymen who had signed his statement proposing a modification of the Volstead act.

The Rev. Charles S. MacFarland also appeared as a spokesman for Dr. Cadman.

"Modification of the Volstead act is a delusion and a snare," he said. "Give prohibition a square deal. Other laws are equally difficult to enforce. Give sobriety a chance with drunkenness."

Mr. MacFarland characterized personal liberty which interferes with the social reform involved in prohibition as a "blot on the nation."

He had received word from church workers in Canada that they were doing better in their fight against liquor.

Sees Poor Benefited.

The Rev. L. W. Beatty, of the First Presbyterian church, of New York city, and a gospel social worker on the East Side, was the next witness. He said conditions among the poor people were better, that the poor people were doing better, that the poor people were doing better, that the poor people were doing better.

"So that the lesson of these figures," said Senator Reed, "is that you can now get booze in New York as easily as before prohibition."

"That's one of the lessons," Dr. Emerson then cited figures respecting Great Britain to show how the liquor traffic had increased since prohibition.

Under questions from Senator Reed, the witness said that it was possible to get a drink almost any time in any part of the country.

Dr. Emerson then cited figures showing that the liquor traffic had increased since prohibition.

Before the morning session got under way, Senator Edge, of New Jersey, made the following statement for publication:

Edge Sees Case Proved.

"The modification hearings, while demonstrating a shocking and intolerable condition, have been most educational and worth while."

"The contention we have made, that present prohibition laws were unenforceable and thus a failure, has been clearly and definitely established."

"We have used government officials to present our case so we could produce facts, not simply opinions. The public has been astounded with the exposure of the millions of gallons of bootleg liquor as well as the inexhaustible supply coming from stills all over the country and in homes."

"The effect of the law among young men and women has been especially deplorable, while the transfer of saloons to homes must command serious attention."

"The transfer of the officials of labor organizations for a beer within constitutional limits and the admission of Director Andrews that such an amendment would help enforcement of curtail bootleggers' poison were high spots in the fight for modification."

"It now develops, however, that drys desire to punish the general because he told the truth. Of course, after their leader, Puysyford Johnson, brazenly admitted the drys had conducted their campaign through lying, bribing and drinking, it could not be expected they would be much impressed by the truth. Gen. Andrews by his frank admission has done much to help real temperance. The drys apparently prefer theoretical temperance and practical defeat to the truth."

"If the opposition gets anywhere, they must refute these facts and not as in the past defend them by exhortation or evasion. The country after the truth, Gen. Andrews and facts alone will be considered."

Wheeler Analyzes Bills.

"Neither will the worn-out claim that national prosperity has been brought about by prohibition be accepted, as the country now realizes we have enjoyed prosperity although we have never had prohibition."

At the outset of the afternoon session, Wayne B. Wheeler, general were correct because they were not disposed to believe the figures which went against prohibition were not considered reliable, he said, because there had been a quarrel between the major and the minor party. She would not care to deal with such figures while she was under oath, she added.

There was no dispute about the fact that the number of arrests for drunkenness had jumped to the preprohibition level and beyond in 1925 where there were 7,719 prosecuted and 15,720 "golden-rules."

By golden rule, it was meant that an intoxicated person is left off if he admits that he has been intoxicated and promises to do better in the future.

"Does that argue to you at all," asked Senator Reed, "that there has been an increase in drunkenness?"

"No. More vigilance," the witness replied. "The police used to have instructions to turn them loose when they saw an intoxicated person. Now they arrest everybody who even looks drunk."

"And if he admits he's drunk you turn him loose?"

"We sober him up first."

"If he has been sober all the time and denies he has been drunk his fate depends on the policeman."

Doctor Charts Diseases.

Dr. Hayden Emerson of Columbia university, New York, professor of public health, came to the stand with charts purporting to show how statistics pertaining to various diseases had been affected by prohibition.

Debate between Senator Reed and the scientist over technical terms, causes of Bright's disease, and the effect of alcohol on the kidneys, seemed to be on the point of building up a theory and supporting it with his charts, Senator Reed asked:

"Do you attribute the decrease in the tuberculosis death rate since 1917, after preceding figures, and a progressive decrease during the years since prohibition, but he admitted that living conditions had followed the same fluctuations, and that better wages, better home conditions, all might have been the determining factors."

In presenting his chart on the number of deaths from alcohol in the Bellevue hospital in New York, Dr. Emerson admitted that this number had increased in 1921 and 1922 to 250, but he admitted that living conditions had followed the same fluctuations, and that better wages, better home conditions, all might have been the determining factors."

Available in New York.

"The increased availability of alcohol to those who come to Bellevue hospital," replied the witness. "Well, if it's available to those, it's available to others, I presume," said Senator Reed.

"How do you know about this availability?"

"Because women like that woman and men like truck drivers who come to the hospital over and over again tell us about it."

"That's one of the lessons," Dr. Emerson then cited figures respecting Great Britain to show how the liquor traffic had increased since prohibition.

Under questions from Senator Reed, the witness said that it was possible to get a drink almost any time in any part of the country.

Dr. Emerson then cited figures showing that the liquor traffic had increased since prohibition.

Wheeler Analyzes Bills.

"Neither will the worn-out claim that national prosperity has been brought about by prohibition be accepted, as the country now realizes we have enjoyed prosperity although we have never had prohibition."

At the outset of the afternoon session, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the antisaloon league, filed an analysis of the bills before the committee. He announced that he would take the stand later.

His analysis, as given to the press, is as follows:

"The proposer of 2.75 per cent beer admits that it may be unenforceable, that he, himself, does not believe it would appease the opposition to prohibition."

"There is no justification for changing the present law, which is constitutional, for a substitute measure of doubtful constitutionality and generally recognized ineffectiveness. No precedent for making the standard 'nonintoxicating in fact,' as proposed by Senator Edge, was suggested by him. Public officials and courts have often held that this means nonenforceability. This is evidently what the wet want. Until the proposers of this change demonstrate that this amendment would result in better law enforcement, they have not made a case justifying favorable consideration."

"Senator Edge admitted on the floor of the Senate that he could not conceive of a nonintoxicating wine, which cancels his statement to the committee that to legalize light wines and beers to constitutional limits would greatly decrease the bootleggers' trade. No nonintoxicating beverages would meet bootleg competition. Only strict enforcement will do that."

"The proposal to permit each State to define intoxicating liquor and to have a Federal law conform to the standard in the States is made at the door to evade the Constitution. No State could legalize intoxicating liquor under the amendment, and the change would be ineffectual to legalize booze. It would destroy government and split the Constitution and increase the difficulties of enforcement. It is a species of nullification."

Sees Rights Infringed.

"The undemocratic proposal of Senator Bruce to amend the Constitution by creating a government of the States, which would make it impossible for either Congress or the States to adopt prohibition legislation, except in those States now having prohibition in their State constitutions, would remove from Congress the power to enforce its laws. Congress is given, by the Bruce proposal, supreme power to enforce its amendment. No city ordinance or State law could be passed even to regulate the liquor traffic, and the proposed amendment would be a violation of the Federal Constitution."

"The proposed measure strips from the people their rights of self-government and their self-defense against the liquor traffic. It would make the Federal government and not the people the source of power. It would give to this government the right to interfere in the liquor business and would tax citizens of dry States to finance this new departure."

"The local option provision in the measure has a joker which would prevent residents in any community from barring the saloon unless the legislature approved."

"A wet majority in one in a single branch of the legislature could eliminate bootleg competition, its responsibility for increasing the alcoholic appetite, its introduction of liquor into the homes, its fostering of crime, its introduction of its restoration of the liquor interests to political power, and its consequences in bringing back the legal sale of hard liquors all argue against the proposed amendment."

"The failure of government control in all Canadian provinces where the liquor traffic is legal, and the restoration of the liquor interests to political power, and its consequences in bringing back the legal sale of hard liquors all argue against the proposed amendment."

THE DISTRICT FINANCE BILL.

The Senate has passed the District appropriation bill, and it will soon be taken up in conference. As predicted, several changes were made by the Senate, and all were for the good of the people of the District. The most important changes were the striking out of the proposal for an increase in water rates, which would have imposed an additional burden upon the people, and the provision with relation to the purchase of school sites, which would have limited the prices paid to a sum not more than 25 per cent in excess of the assessed values. The Senate also added $400,000 to the House figure for street repairs. To offset this, however, the Senate reduced the appropriation for the school building program by $370,000.

As passed by the Senate, the District bill carries a total appropriation of $23,697,771, which is a net decrease of $61,520 from the House bill. It is probable there will be some earnest discussion among the conferees, but in the end it is altogether likely the conference committee will agree on the two most important changes made by the Senate.

To have increased the water rates would have added to the revenues of the District, but it would have been an unjust taxation on the owners of property and might have led to increased rentals to tenants, even if the increase were comparatively small. The provision written into the bill by the House committee, prohibiting the purchase of any land for school purposes at a cost that would exceed 25 per cent of the assessed valuation, would have made impossible the carrying out of the five-year building program. This provision was unwarranted, was so regarded by members of the House after explanations were made by the District authorities of the consequences that would result. Altogether the Senate committee did a good job in amending the House bill and it is to be hoped there will not be any opposition on the part of the House conferees to the principal changes.

You can't start a revolution in a land where everybody knows what a niblick is.

FEDERAL RETIREMENT.

Prospects for the passage of a liberalized Federal employees' retirement law appeared much brighter yesterday when Senator Stanfield, of Oregon, chairman of the Senate civil service committee, reported favorably a bill not materially different from that which was originally drafted. Virtually the only change made in the bill as reported and that which the committee favored in the first instance is in the setting of age limits, the committee having fixed the age of retirement for executive employees at 65 years instead of making retirement optional with employees after 30 years' service regardless of age. The age of retirement for mail clerks was left at 62 as at present instead of lowering it to 60 as was proposed.

In its present form the Stanfield bill is much the same as that passed by the Senate last year and which died in the House. The Senate bill will now take its place on the calendar, and Senator Stanfield and other friends of the clerks are confident it will pass, perhaps within two weeks. Inasmuch as the chances are Congress will not be able to adjourn before the middle of May or the first of June, liberalized retirement legislation appears to be on the high road to enactment.

You never saw a fat and prosperous people risking much for its "inalienable" rights.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.

During the last Congress over 2,000 claims bills were introduced in Congress, but only 250 became law. The cost to the government in the printing of private claims bills for the last ten years is considerably in excess of $500,000. Congress has passed a number of statutes, most of them since the war, conferring limited jurisdiction on the heads of the executive departments to settle property damage claims in the conduct of their departmental activities.
The act of December 28, 1922, conferring power on the head of each executive department and independent establishment to settle claims "for damages to or loss of privately owned property not over $1,000 caused by the negligence of any officer or employee of the government acting within the scope of his employment" was worked so well that it is proposed to increase the amount to $5,000. Altogether, up to March 4, 1925, over 1,242 claims have been settled under this act. This is called the "small claims" act. Congress has also passed the admiralty act allowing suits in admiralty for damages caused by United States vessels on the seas.

Despite this legislation the number of damage claims before the committees of Congress has increased this year. The committees have been swamped. To meet this situation a bill is under consideration to relieve Congress of the thousands of damage claims and provide a forum where the claimants may be heard. The greatest dissatisfaction and the severest criticism of our government in the matter of claims, it is said, is the lack of a forum to which a claim may be taken as a matter of right.

The provisions of the bill may be summarized:

(1) For claims in amounts not exceeding $5,000 relief is to be had in administrative proceedings before the head of the department or establishment concerned.

(2) For claims in amounts exceeding $5,000 but not exceeding $10,000 claimants may go to the Court of Claims under section 3 or to a Federal district court sitting as a court of claims.

(3) For claims in amounts over $10,000 the claimant may go to the Court of Claims.
The bill gives the United States employees' compensation commission authority to hear and adjust claims for personal injury or death of government employees.

DELAYING DISARMAMENT.

Another postponement of the preparatory conference on disarmament may be expected. It is reported that the French government has been informed that Poland and Roumania are not prepared to discuss disarmament in view of Soviet Russia's refusal to take part in the preparatory conference. It is also reported that the British plan is to go ahead with the conference, leaving to the delegates the question of postponement in case Russia's refusal to participate should make it impracticable for other nations to discuss disarmament.

Whether the postponement shall be ordered by the league of nations or by the preparatory conference itself is of small importance. The outstanding fact is that the nations of Europe are not ready or willing to disarm. No one can rightly blame the eastern European countries for refusing to disarm so long as Russia refuses to take similar action. An irruption of Russian forces into Bessarabia is not unlikely, following on the heels of the revolution that threatens to paralyze Roumania. Conditions in Roumania are so bad that the country will be fortunate indeed if it holds together, to say nothing of fighting off the Russians. As for Poland, the recent clash in the league of nations over the demand of Poland for a permanent seat in the council discloses that the relations between Poland and Germany must be greatly improved before Poland would feel warranted in joining other nations in planning for limitation of armament.

Other circumstances, affecting the great powers of Europe, conspire to make disarmament unacceptable, notwithstanding their professions of a desire to disarm. The reconstruction of the league council must be effected before France can rely upon the Locarno treaties; and this reconstruction is an even more difficult problem than that which appeared to be solved at Locarno.

You don't really need medicine to thin your blood in spring. Just thin your diet.

WORLD TRADE IN BUTTER.

The volume of butter entering into trade reflects world economic conditions. During the five years just preceding the world war an average of about 700,000,000 pounds of butter was annually placed on the world market. This quantity dropped during the war, and in 1918 amounted to only 206,000,000 pounds. Butter shipments constantly increased as reconstruction and the return to normal conditions progressed; and in 1924 they had reached the highest quantity on record—899,000,000 pounds.

One of the most effective means for developing the export trade has been the establishment of standards by certain countries, so that when butter from these countries is found on any market its character is known without further test. These standards, which are indicated by official marks of the containers of the butter, when packed for foreign markets, all guarantee the genuineness and purity of the products, while some guarantee also quality.

The leading butter exporting countries of the world are Denmark, New Zealand, the Netherlands, Russia, Australia and Argentina. Denmark supplies about one-third of the world butter exports, which in the five-year period before the war averaged 200,000,000 pounds annually. Danish exports in 1924 rose to 272,000,000 pounds.

Great Britain is the world butter market. Imports of butter into Great Britain amount to from 70 to 80 per cent of the total world imports, reaching a total of more than 467,000,000 pounds in 1924.

In 1924 the United States imported about 19,404,000 pounds of butter and butter substitutes; in 1925 only about 7,212,000 pounds. In 1924 the United States exported 8,256,000 pounds of butter; in 1925 about 5,342,000 pounds. The United States produces an average of about 1,500,000,000 pounds of butter annually. Therefore it is seen that a very small part of the production is sold abroad. The best market for American butter is in the United States.

The Federal Reserve Board reports that March retail trade was 7 per cent higher than in March, 1925. But Wall street insists upon feeling blue.

POTATOES, ALL PRICES.

The present condition of the potato market should cause joy to the grower of spuds. But will it? No, emphatically no. Last November The Post took occasion to comment upon the news that a grower in Idaho had cleaned up $24,000 for his crop of 8,000 bushels, grown on 35 acres of land. Shortly after the publication of that interesting item on agricultural prosperity, potato growers in Maine, New York and Michigan rushed their crops to New York. Inside ten days the market was glutted. The cars could not be unloaded rapidly enough, and thousands of bushels were reported frozen on the tracks of the railroads entering the city. The reaction was as natural as it was rapid. The slump was complete and the price dropped below a dollar a bushel. But the weather in the fall of 1925, in the potato growing sections, was wet and cold; there were early frosts, and thousands of bushels were left in the ground, frozen and valueless.

The market recovered from the effects of the November glut and the price rose steadily until it reached the peak this week, when dealers in New York city put the figure at "two pounds for a quarter," or as would have been said in Center Market a few years ago, "a levy a pound." That means $7.50 a bushel at retail, with the wholesale rate about half that, and the farm value around $3.00. That ought to satisfy any farmer—but it won't. He will probably have to buy seed again this spring, and his neighbor who has a surplus will probably "soak" him for $5 for every bushel of the ten which will be required to plant each acre. Because the price is high now he will certainly overplant, and it is the "one best bet" that the farm price of spuds next fall in New York, Michigan and Maine will fall below a dollar. It's tough being a farmer.

A true sport is one who can chat lightly while watching the taxi meter.

POST-WAR DISLOCATION.

In his testimony before the Senate committee on military affairs on the Capper bill, to provide further for national defense, Secretary of War Davis said:

I think the factor of elimination of the disruption of business after the war is a matter which perhaps is not usually given much consideration, but one which we believe is of fundamental importance. There are a great many things which can be done in time of peace, can be planned in advance, which if left to time of war would be done in confusion and haste and with a tremendous waste of money.

Secretary Davis obviously pointed out the greatest lessons learned in 1917 and 1918. Unpreparedness doubtless added to America's cost of war, many millions if not billions. War preparations were conducted with feverish haste and with excessive costs.

Furthermore, this haste was accompanied with little thought of the economic and business results after the war was over. The economic and business disruption due to the war has lingered long with us and with the whole world. This disruption is largely responsible for excessive taxes, for excessive prices and cost of living, for enormous public and private debts, for excessive war profits followed by excessive post-war losses, for dislocation of world exchanges, for world debts mounting into the billions of dollars, and for domestic and international economic and business disturbances throwing trade and business out of joint.

As Secretary Davis suggests, many of these calamities might have been avoided with sufficient precaution and preparedness before the war was undertaken by the United States.

Even the hard-boiled should be charitable. A dollar invested in charity gives you four dollars' worth of complacency.

THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

Interesting and instructive hearings have just been held on what is known as the Vestal copyright bill. The measure, in addition to establishing the automatic copyright principle and revising the present law to take care of all copyright situations, provides for the membership of the United States in the international copyright union, and the protection of American authors and publishers when they buy American rights.

The contention is made by leading writers and authors that a work of art is the property of the creator from the start, and that no formalities should be necessary to establish that right. Doubtless many writers of fiction, music and verse are not protected as they should be by the present copyright law, especially in other countries. The work of a man or woman's brain coming under the class of literature or art is property; and if there is any virtue to the right of private property it should embrace literature and art.

The rain no longer falls equally on the just and unjust. The unjust seldom care for picnics.

THE COASTWISE RULING.

Attorney General Sargent is reported to have said that he is willing to hear further from interested parties relative to his recent decision permitting a British vessel to ship an American commodity from a Pacific coast port to New Orleans, unload the cargo at New Orleans for manipulation, and to load again and depart with the same cargo for a foreign port. Shipping associations claim that this is a violation of the law prohibiting foreign vessels from carrying cargoes in the coastwise trade.

This is an important matter. If the existing law is not sufficiently clear as to the intent of Congress in carrying out the historic policy of the United States to reserve coastwise shipping and trade to American vessels exclusively, it seems obvious that the law should be amended. American shipping interests and the United States Shipping Board are anxious to have the matter settled as soon as possible. If there is a hole in the law it should be plugged up at once.

The wages of sin now depend somewhat on how much the confession magazines are paying.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today
By Will Rogers

The Worst Joke I heard today was told to me by the most popular man in New York City, Father Duffy, the Chaplain of the Fighting 69th. I ran into him at St. Peter's church. Then I see the other day where the Catholic Writers Guild had given him $10,000. That will last him about three days. He will take it and give it out to all who are down and out. But just think what a lot of good he will do with it. You don't have to be of his religion to get on with Father Duffy. He could go into Atlanta, and in two months be elected Grand Lollypops of the Klan, or down the East Side in New York and be head of the Rabbits Guild. I am pulling for Father Duffy to be Pope some day. He has Tammany Hall and I behind him.

Father tells a good Irish story. An Episcopal bishop was driving down Fifth Ave., sitting away back, all bundled up in his limousine, and his driver disobeyed some traffic rule. The big Irish Cop came out and stopped him and was all set to give him a Ticket. The Episcopal bishop, who wore a Roman collar, looked out to see what all the shooting was about, and the Cop saw the collar. Now this was in about two blocks of the Cathedral. The Policeman couldn't think of enough apologies. But just as they started to drive away he said: "Look out, Father, two corners down. There is a Protestant Policeman on duty!"

PRESS COMMENT.

A Habit With Brandy.

Rochester Times-Union: When an American stokes a comeback, that's a feat; with Brandy it's just a habit.

Uneasy Conscience, Eh?

The Atlanta Constitution: Perhaps the reason a legislature is slow to adjourn is that it gives people a chance to talk behind its back.

Silly Life, What?

Detroit Free Press: What kind of a world is it where a league of nations for peace is disorderly and heavyweight fighters won't fight.

A Queer World, This!

New York Telegraph: In an old fellow courts a girl and doesn't marry her, he gets arrested. And if he does marry her, it appears, he gets arrested, too. It's a queer world.

A Challenge From Hawaii.

Honolulu Star Bulletin: Just for our own interest and satisfaction, we'd like to get a Florida man and a California man together in Honolulu on one of these fine salubrious mornings.

Ohio State Journal: We suppose after President Coolidge had reduced the duty on live bob-white quail under the flexible provision of the tariff law he went around for several days feeling dangerously radical.

Total Loss, Some Think.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: An insurance statistician reports that it costs $6,167 to rear a girl, and $6,077 to rear a boy to the age of 18 years—but doesn't tell us whether the expenditure should be classed as an investment or as a speculation.

Farm Bloc Wins.

New York Herald Tribune: Although the session is near its close, there is now good reason to expect some sort of action before adjournment. The administration has executed a complete about-face, and Congress, too, has an eye on the November election. The farm bloc is winning all along the line.

Getting Gay.

Brooklyn Eagle: In court the other day Charles Evans Hughes, soberest of men, described a Broadway revue as "Vaudeville garbished with girls." He may have had in his mind the Texan's definition of heaven: "A boundless paradise of flowers fenced in with pretty girls." That Texan came of a bully Irish family.

Cherry Blossoms.

New York Herald Tribune: The beauty of the cherry trees at Washington during blossoming time is known to most New Yorkers. Visitors flock into the Capital from miles around to see the bloom at its best; but how many know of it, and visit New York's own cherry trees? At the northern end of Cen-

When Our Brains Loaf

By GLENN FRANK

FOR our minds as for our morals, leisure hours may mean either development or dissipation.

Reading to kill time may prove a dangerous pastime.

When we read to kill time we are likely to choose only the time-killing kind of reading.

We may make reading a substitute for thought instead of a stimulation of thought.

We know well the staple story of the over-worked presidents and the busy captains of industry who read only detective stories in their free hours. This is a deliberate pursuit of recreation by men whose minds have been hard pressed during the day.

I am thinking, however, of the vast army of readers whose minds are not hard pressed during working hours. For them the hours of reading should obviously be hours of stimulation; they do not need the adventures in intellectual skylarking that the over-worked mind needs. And yet they are just the crowd that very often reads for reading sake alone.

Their minds lie abed until noon and cry for relaxing reading upon arising.

I have just been rereading Samuel Taylor Coleridge's stimulating little volume, "Aids to Reflection and the Confessions of an Enquiring Spirit." Tucked away in one of the many long foot-notes that crowd the volume, I find this illuminating discussion of the indolent reader:

"The whole world of minds, as far as we regard intellectual efforts, may be divided into two classes of the Busy-Indolent and the Lazy-Indolent."

"To both alike, all thinking is painful, and all attempts to rouse them to think, whether in the reexamination of their existing convictions, or for the reception of new light, are irritating."

"It may all be very deep and clever—they say—but really one ought to be quite sure of it before one wrenches one's brain to find out what it is. I take up a book as a companion, with whom I can have an easy cheerful chit-chat on what we both know beforehand, or else matters of fact. In our leisure hours we have a right to relaxation and amusement."

"Well! but in their studious hours, when their bow is to be bent? Alas! it is just the same! The same craving for amusement, for relaxation, that is, the unbending of a bow which in fact has never been strung!"

"There are two ways of obtaining their applause. 'The first is: enable them to reconcile in one and the same occupation (reading) the love of sloth and the hatred of vacancy. Gratify indolence, and yet save them from themselves. For, spite of their antipathy for dry reading, the keeping company with themselves is, after all, the insufferable annoyance.'

"The other road to their favor is, to introduce to them their own thoughts and predilections, tricked out in the fine language, in which it would gratify their vanity to express them in their own conversation, and with which they can imagine themselves showing off."

I have presented these paragraphs from Coleridge as a handy manual for popular authors, but as a picture that may make some of us repent of our reading sins.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Give Mexico a Chance.

To the Editor of The Post:—Sir: What trouble politicians can not stir up the various creeds and churches do. Give Mexico a chance. Likewise let the Episcopal bishops give Turkey a chance. However, the present-day idea of Christianity is to condemn these poor people and their countries. They can not be remade overnight. If the attitude of Christianity is as expressed by these people is the right idea, then let us who disagree with them pray and lend a helping hand to Mexico. M. C. BROOKS.

What Is Democracy?

To the Editor of The Post:—Sir: "Rise up Bill Allen," William Allen, Senator from Ohio, but born in North Carolina in 1802, gave to my mind the best and most concise definition of "What is Democracy?" His voice was so strong it reverberated from the halls of Congress into the adjacent corridors. Asked in the course of a vehement speech "What is Democracy?" without hesitation he thundered out: "Democracy is a sentiment not to be appalled, corrupted or compromised. It knows no baseness; it covers before no danger; it oppresses no weakness."

"It is destructive of despotism. It is the sentiment of equal rights or equal obligations, the very spirit of liberty itself pervading the land."

Senator Allen was an uncle of Allen G. Thurman, also a Senator from Ohio, in reconstruction times.

In the late 60's and early 70's, I appeared as usually the forerunner of a hot Democratic speech and in those times speeches on both sides sizzled.

JOHN BOYLE

Washington, April 15.

The Bible and Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post:—Sir: I have read with great interest the letter of Mr. George F. Weeks, replying to that of Gilbert Hurd, whose letter, as Mr. Weeks remarks, is typical prohibition stuff. Mr. Weeks is in error about one thing, however. The text misquoted by Mr. Hurd is not to be found in the Proverbs of Solomon. Mr. Hurd "took his text" from Deuteronomy xxxiii:22, and his use, or rather misuse of it is as clear a case of "juggling of texts," and misquoting of Scripture as I ever saw. It is part of Moses' last speech to the Israelites, before he went to end his days on the heights of Pisgah. It is, literally, "the farewell address of the father of his country."

Denouncing divine judgments against a wicked, backsliding nation, Moses said, in figurative, symbolic language:

"For they are a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them."

"Oh that they were wise, that they understood this as we do!"

"For their vine is as the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah; their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter."

"Their wine is the poison of dragons, and the cruel venom of asps."

Not a word about "fermented wine." It is wine made from Dead Sea. There is not one single line in Holy Writ that can be truthfully construed as advocating prohibition.

HEALING SERVICE MONDAY

The Rt. Rev. George H. S. Walpole, lord bishop of Edinburgh, will be the principal speaker at the meeting of the Sunday School Institute of the Episcopal Church in the diocese of Washington, which will be held in the parish hall of Epiphany church at 8 p. m. Tuesday. His topic will be "The Devotional Use of the New Testament."

The Rev. Victor O. Anderson, rector of St. Agnes' church, will speak on "The Place of Christian Art in Religious Education."

The regular monthly meeting of the Society of the Nazarene will be held Monday at Trinity church, third and C streets northwest, at 11
a. m. There will be a healing service at this time and again in the evening at 8 p. m., also at Trinity church. The Rev. William Curtis White, temporarily in charge of Trinity, is a local officer of the society and will officiate at the services.

Miss Frances DeGrange of this city, who for two years was a teacher in the Episcopal Mission school at Quintana Roo, Cuba, will be the speaker at the spring meeting of the Church School Service league of the Episcopal Church in the diocese of Washington, which will be held in the parish hall of Epiphany church at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.
There will be election of officers and a brief business session. After the address refreshments will be served by the Church School Service league of Epiphany parish.

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman,
bishop of Washington, and the Rev.
Z. B. Phillips, D. D., rector of Epiphany church, have arranged for a meeting to be held at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G street northwest, at 8 o'clock Friday evening, following a lecture by Wilfred T. Grenfell.

The Grenfell Medical missions in Newfoundland and Labrador are sustained by societies federated under the name "The International Grenfell association." Branches of the association exist all over the country.

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman,
D. D., diocese of Washington, will preach at the Church of the Transfiguration on Gallatin street near Fourteenth street northwest, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, and administer rites of confirmation. The Rev. J. J. Gually, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, will present for confirmation a class of 30.

Chinese Missionary

At Hamline Church

The Rev. James M. Yard, of the Christian church in China, will occupy the pulpit of Hamline Methodist Episcopal church at both services tomorrow.

Since returning to America Dr.
Yard has been addressing some of the largest missionary gatherings.
He was for 15 years a member of the faculty of the West China Union university at Chengtu, the most inaccessible capital in China. For some years he lived 1,500 miles from a railroad, the only means of conveyance being sedan chairs and small rowboats. For three years he was editor of the China Christian Advocate, head of the Chinese mission in China, with offices in Shanghai. At present he is representative of the West China Union university.

B. Y. P. U. Federation

To Meet in Alexandria

Two monthly meetings of the Columbia Federation B. Y. P. U. will be held Tuesday in Temple Baptist church, Alexandria, Va.

is preparing entertainment.
Among the winners in the bowling tournament held at the Ken-Coliseum were: George Allen, Kendall; Miss Noreen Shipp, Bethany; Miss Susie Rock, Earnest Rice and Mr. Rice, of Fifth Baptist.

Members of the various unions are looking forward to the opening of the tennis season. Commencing with June there will be published by the Southern Baptist convention a B. Y. P. U. magazine, the first issue of which will contain a story of the federation and a picture of the executive board.

Covenant Society to Meet.

The monthly meeting of the Society of the Covenant will be held in the lecture-room of the church at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. Dr. William H. Dobson, of Forman Memorial hospital, Yuegkong, will tell of his experiences and work as a medical missionary in China.

EPISCOPAL SCHOOLS PARADE TOMORROW

Children to Go From Ellipse to Epiphany to Present Easter Offerings.

For the first time in the history of the Episcopal Church in Washington the details of raising the children's Lenten offering were placed in the hands of the newly created field department of the executive council of the diocese, of which the Rev. George F. Dudley is chairman.

The field department decided that it would encourage a large offering if the schools assembled at some point shortly after Easter to present at one time their respective offerings. Tomorrow is the date chosen, and at 4 p. m. a service will be held in Epiphany church.

Sunday schools will form on the Ellipse at 2:30 o'clock, in three groups, as follows: Those from outside the District of Columbia on the north side of the Ellipse, Sunday schools from east of Sixteenth street on the east side, Sunday schools from west of Sixteenth street on the west side. Each school will carry an American flag, its school banners and crosses.

The parade will start at 3 o'clock and march by way of East Executive avenue to Pennsylvania avenue, east to Fifteenth street, south to G street and east to Epiphany church. Maj. Gen. John A. Le-jeune, of the United States marine corps and a vestryman of Epiphany parish, is chief of the parade.
Dr. L. W. Glazebrook will act as an aid to Gen. Lejeune.

Conference Friday

J. S. Armentrout, of the Presbyterian board of education, and Dr.
Thomas S. Young, of the American Baptist Publication society, will address the interdenominational conference on "Daily Vacation Bible Schools," Friday. This conference, to promote Vacation Bible school work, will hold afternoon and evening sessions in Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church
South. In addition to the addresses, an inspiring lecture on the work illustrated with stereopticon, will be given in the evening session.
Opportunity will be given for discussion of the program and problems of Vacation schools.

The Washington Federation of Churches is promoting this conference, which is open to workers of the churches and Sunday schools of all denominations.

Noted Impersonator to Be at First Congregational Tomorrow and Monday.

OTHER CHURCH SERVICES

Visiting members of the D. A. R. wearing their official badges will be admitted ten minutes early at the 8 p. m. service tomorrow in First Congregational church, when Lincoln Caswell, of New York, will give several character sketches of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Caswell also will read at 4:45 and 8 p. m. Monday.

Similar to Lincoln physically,
this impersonator is said to possess many personal attributes identical to those of the emancipator. He needs no theatrical make-up, and is frequently compared with Lincoln by men who still recall the appearance and acts of the civil war President. Dr. Caswell does not lecture, he adheres to the phrasingology of Lincoln, says what Lincoln said and portrays the scenes and circumstances of civil war days. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor, will preach at the 11 a. m. service on "The Great Imperative."

Undistributed Portion of Son's Property Amounting to $50,000 Bequeathed.

TRUST FUND IS CREATED

Two wills, which are duplicates, executed June 13, 1924, by Mrs. Sarah C. Ffoulke, were filed yesterday in probate court by the Provident Trust company of Philadelphia, executors. By virtue of an appointment under the will of her son, Horace C. Ffoulke, deceased, Mrs. Ffoulke disposed of the undistributed portion of the son's estate which amounts to $50,000. She devised $45,000 of this amount to her daughter, Gladys F. Ffoulke and the remaining $5,000 is given to the daughter, Helen S. Ffoulke. Sidney Ferguson, colored servant, is given $500.

The sum of $5,000 is devised in trust to the executors to assist John A. Niles, Jr., in obtaining a four-year course at an accredited university. Eleanor Ffoulke, sister-in-law of the testatrix, is given $5,000. A trust fund of $10,000 is created for the benefit of a grandson, Horace Havenly, and when he is 21 years of age he is to receive the principal and accumulated income. The personal effects are to be distributed according to instructions previously issued by the testatrix.

and in accordance with the terms of the will. The balance of the estate is devised in trust for the children of the daughter, Gladys F. Ffoulke.

Dennis McCarthy, who died April 11, devised his entire estate in trust to Richard M. Parker as executor for the benefit of his nieces and nephews, according to the will filed yesterday by the executor. The nieces and nephews are not mentioned by name. It is likely that the estate will exceed $1,000,000 in value.

Parole Commission Here Is Proposed

A bill to establish a parole commission in the District was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Gerry, of Rhode Island. Under its provisions the United States attorney, corporation counsel and general superintendent of District penal institutions would comprise the commission.

It would have jurisdiction over all District cases and Federal cases committed in the District. No paroles, however, could be granted in Federal cases, except with the approval of the attorney general.

Fireman George A. Bessler, 44 years old, 1428 Potomac avenue southeast, attached to No. 8 engine company, was injured on the shoulder when he was knocked down while laying out hose to fight a chimney fire at 230 E street southwest yesterday. He was treated at Emergency hospital and later was taken to his home. The fire was confined to the chimney and damage was slight. The house is occupied by Jeff Halesotek.

OFFICIALS DISPUTE "TAX-RING" MERITS

Practice Is Called a Disgrace by Richards, Who Blames Congress.

District officials differed yesterday on the merits or demerits of the alleged ring that buys tax titles to property of delinquent owners.

Commissioner Cuno H. Rudolph said that there are men who make it a business to pay back taxes and collect heavy interest from owners for redemption. Nearly $500,000 was paid on such property by 24 men at this year's tax sale. He added that if it had not been for them the District would not have received that amount of revenue. Assessor William P. Richards called the practice a disgrace, but placed the responsibility on Congress for not authorizing him to install a plan he devised to notify all taxpayers promptly of arrears, adding 1 per cent a month penalty to the assessments for the first year, 2 per cent a month for the second year and thereafter selling it under court order, conveying with it valid title to the purchasers.

Mass Meeting Called

Ministers of Hyattsville, the Rev. C. H. Cannon, the Rev. Herman McKay and the Rev. B. P. Robertson have called a mass meeting to be held in Masonic temple at 3 p. m. tomorrow. The purpose of the mass meeting, to which officials of surrounding territory have been invited, is "to create more respect for the Constitution and laws of the United States."

"RHYME & REASON"

USING NEWSPAPERS IN SCHOOL PRAISED TO WOMEN VOTERS

Good Sign for Democracy, League Convention at St. Louis Hears.

ACTS AS A DETERRENT FOR MOB-MINDEDNESS

Birth-Control Study Rejected for Program of Child Welfare Committee.

St. Louis, Mo., April 16 (By A. P.).—Newspaper reading as a factor in civic education was praised by Miss Belle Sherwin, of Cleveland, president of the National League of Women Voters, in an address tonight at a mass meeting. The league is holding its seventh annual convention here.

"Education for active citizenship has hardly been tried," Miss Sherwin declared. "It is demonstrated that reading and writing do not in themselves result in responsible voting. We know that the influence of increasingly practical courses in civics in the schools carries over to the voting age at most only a little interest, a little understanding, and a little information which requires to be brought up to date."

"We see that advanced courses in civics and government equip a few leaders yearly with varying degrees of encyclopedic knowledge."

Better Sign for Democracy.

"But there is a better sign for democracy in formal education. It may be found in the modest attempts in the schools here and there to teach critical reading of the newspapers and other means of avoiding mob mindedness."

Other speakers were Mrs. Maud Wood Park, former president, and Mrs. Harriett Taylor Upton, former member of the Republican national committee. Mrs. Upton's address took the place of that of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, honorary president, who is ill.

Birth Control Rejected.

Advocates of birth control suffered a setback at the convention today.

Delegates from New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Vermont offered a resolution to include birth control study in the year's program of the child welfare committee, as a step toward birth control education and legislation, but the resolution was rejected by the committee in executive session.

The general council of the league voted to change the by-laws to make the convention a biennial instead of an annual affair. The council also approved a report of the get-out-the-vote committee, recommending continuation of the league's campaign for increased registration and voting.

TRAFFIC CODE HELD ENFORCED POORLY

and training of police be vested in the inspector in charge of the traffic bureau who should advise directly with the director of traffic.

2. That special training in law enforcement be given to all police engaged in this line of work under the direction and supervision of the inspector in charge of the traffic bureau.

3. That the courts, by uniformly meting out adequate and severe punishment to habitual or willful offenders, instill in the public a proper respect for the law.

4. That the present bill giving the director of traffic broader powers, recently passed by the House of Representatives, be enacted.

5. That the regulations governing truck loads be so changed as to take from the truck manufacturer the right to, by establishing a rated capacity, determine what loads his trucks shall carry.

6. That trucks should not be prohibited from using certain streets unless parallel routes are provided.

7. That the light control system be extended.

Progress of Schools Is Topic of Ballou

Great progress has been made by the schools of the district of Columbia in the last 15 years, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, declared at the meeting of the Weightman Parent-Teachers association last night. The schools are constantly demanding modern improvements, he declared, which, he continued, are being supplied to them as rapidly as funds permit. B. W. Murch, supervising principal of the first division, also spoke.

Miss Alexandra L. Galeski, principal of the Weightman school, was in charge of the program. The invitations were painted by the children of the school; Agnes Fitzhugh Lee Shaper, 9 years old, played the piano and Janet Kirsch danced. Mrs. Edith Hanley, president of the association, presided.

Relay of Musical Concerts Planned

The relaying of musical concerts from the District of Columbia war memorial temple, soon to be constructed in Potomac Park, to Hains point and the Lincoln memorial, by means of an amplifying system, is being considered by the architects planning the construction of the temple.

The complicated electrical equipment necessary for amplifying the music to be played in the memorial temple by the military bands of the National Capital, will be located in a room beneath the floor of the temple, according to present plans. The amplifying horns will also be hidden from sight in the dome of the temple.

General Rail Strike In Cuba Postponed

Havana, April 16 (By A. P.).—The Brotherhood of Railway Employees has acceded to the request of President Machado not to call a nation-wide strike tonight as had been planned. Officers of the workers will confer with the president before calling the strike.

The brotherhood has promised the secretary of the interior that all sugar cane cars will be moved on every line, including the Cuba railroad, whose employees quit Wednesday night when the company refused increases. The general strike had been planned in sympathy.

The government has agreed to the request of the sugar growers to curtail the crop by 10 per cent.

AIRSHIP NORGE'S CREW USING RUSSIAN PALACE

Many Festivities at Leningrad for Men in Amundsen Expedition.

BAG HOUSED AT TROTSK

Leningrad, April 16 (By A. P.).—After having been lost in the fog for the better part of seventeen hours yesterday on a voyage from Oslo, Norway, the big Italian-built polar dirigible Norge is housed in the Trotski air-drome, 29 miles from Leningrad.

It will remain about two weeks before resuming its flight to Spitzbergen, whence it will start for the arctic. The ship left Rome last Saturday.

When it failed to appear at Trotski early yesterday a squadron of soviet airplanes flew out continually in an endeavor to find it. The utility of a radio station to establish communication with the Norge and the unfavorable meteorological conditions caused some anxiety for her safety. At one time the airship was far out of her course over the Baltic sea.

"Give me a warm room," were the first words of Commander Nobile, as he stepped out of his gondola. This was easy, since apartments had been prepared for the members of the expedition in the former imperial Czarina palace. On their arrival at the palace tea was served.

A round of festivities has been arranged for the fliers during their stay in Leningrad.

(Roald Amundsen, leader of the expedition, and Lincoln Ellsworth, of New York, codirector, are now on their way to Kings Bay, Spitzbergen.)

The Trotski air-drome is a relic of the great war. It has been reconditioned and improved by the red military authorities. Trotski, formerly known as Czar Nicholas, was named in honor of Leon Trotski.

BINGER HERMANN DIES; 16 YEARS IN HOUSE

Former Oregon Representative
Land Fraud Cases.

Roseburg, Ore., April 16 (By A. P.).—Binger Hermann, 83, who for 16 years represented Oregon in the lower house of Congress, died here yesterday. He served as commissioner of the United States general land office at Washington during the administration of President McKinley.

Hermann's death recalled a sensational chapter in the history of the West written in the famous land fraud cases, which occupied public attention years ago. An investigation of land entries, started by Secretary of the Interior Ethan Allen Hitchcock in 1902, developed into a political fight which involved United States senators and members of Congress of Oregon and other Western States.

Francis J. Heney was put in charge of prosecution and William J. Burns, detective, was engaged to investigate. Hermann had resigned as commissioner of the land office and was elected to Congress. With others, Hermann was indicted. He was tried at Washington on a charge of destroying letter-press books while land commissioner and was acquitted.

J. J. Ingalls' Widow Dies in Kansas at 83

Atchison, Kans., April 16 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Anna Louisa Ingalls, widow of the late United States Senator John J. Ingalls, of Kansas, died at her home here tonight. She was 83 years old. Among the memoirs Mrs. Ingalls treasured was her attendance at President Lincoln's inaugural ball. It was before her marriage and she was escorted by S. J. Crawford, war time governor of Kansas, on the long and tedious journey to the National Capital. As the wife of Senator Ingalls she came to know the Presidents and statesmen of the reconstruction period intimately. Senator Ingalls died in 1900.

Funeral Services for Patent Attorney Will Be Held This Morning.

Funeral services for John J. McCarthy, prominent Washington patent attorney who died Tuesday at Sagamore Lake, N. Y., after a long illness, will be held this morning from St. Martin's church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery. Mr. McCarthy was a native of Washington and was educated at Gonzaga college and Georgetown university. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Holy Name society and St. Martin's church. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Irene Brosnan McCarthy; three daughters, Irene, Catherine and Mary; one sister, Miss Mary McCarthy, and three brothers, Aloysius, Francis and Leo McCarthy.

DEMANDS "LIQUOR MEN" QUIT JOBS IN MARYLAND

Crabbe Denounces Ritchie at
M. E. Conference; Wants
"Right Kind" Elected.

SUNDAY POLO IS OPPOSED

Frederick, Md., April 16.—Classed as "liquor men" who have no respect for the prohibition law, Maryland State officials, including Gov. Ritchie, were scored by George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Maryland Antisaloal league, at the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church here today. Crabbe declared the worst thing the temperance workers have to deal with is the metropolitan press. He appealed to women voters to help clear out the present executive officials of Maryland and put the "right kind" of men in office.

Harry L. Price, president of the layman's association, declared President Coolidge had not satisfied the American people by allowing persons not having the enforcement of the Volstead act at heart to remain in charge of prohibition enforcement.

The Rev. Dr. W. W. Davis, secretary of the Maryland Lord's Day alliance, presented a resolution signed by five ministers, asking the War Department to forbid army officers from participating in Sunday polo games.

The annual banquet of the board of examiners and undergraduates was held this afternoon and a mass meeting followed tonight at which the Rev. W. L. McDowell, Washington, was the principal speaker.

Following an executive business meeting this morning, an address was made by Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of New York. Bishop W. F. McDowell, Washington, delivered the semi-centennial sermon.

Next Monday Bishop Wilson will read the appointments of 300 ministers.

SHORTAGE OF $7,200 LAID TO BANK TELLER

Baltimore Reserve Official Denies Charge; Police Hold Warrant.

Baltimore, April 16 (By A. P.).—A shortage of $7,200 in the funds of the Federal Reserve Branch Bank, of Baltimore, has been traced to the account of Walter H. Snyder, a teller, Albert H. Dudley, manager of the branch, announced today. The loss, the first ever suffered by a Federal Reserve bank here, has been reported to the district bank at Richmond, Mr. Dudley said.

The defalcation was discovered in February, shortly after it occurred. A complete check by auditors sent here traced the shortage to Snyder. The teller's responsibilities, although false entries, including a check raised from $200 to $7,200, were discovered in Snyder's accounts, the bank manager said. Snyder has been dismissed from the bank, but has not been arrested. Police say they hold a warrant for his arrest.

Former Banker Dies Arranging Separation

Chicago, April 16 (By A. P.).—William J. Klingenberg, 49 years old, former bank president, died suddenly today shortly before his attorney was to meet counsel for his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Morrill Klingenberg, formerly from Atlanta, Ga., in an attempt to settle her suit for separate maintenance.

Death was ascribed to alcoholism. Klingenberg resigned about a year ago as president of the Sheridan Trust & Savings Bank after his wife had brought suit, charging cruelty and drunkenness. His first wife divorced him several years ago on similar charges and accepted a settlement of $100,000.

Drowns When Auto Plunges Into Creek

Keyser, W. Va., April 16.—Trapped in his automobile when it plunged and turned over in New Creek, James Burton Bowers, 31, a hollemaker, was drowned this morning. Discovery of the overturned car in the creek was made by E. H. Holliday, who notified Sheriff Alkire, of Mineral county. The car was dragged from the creek and Bowers' body was found. Bowers left his home Thursday night, telling his wife he intended seeing a physician.

MEXICO MAY CLOSE 150 MORE SCHOOLS

Renewed Excitement Caused by Announcement in the National Capital.

Mexico City, April 16 (By A. P.).—The government campaign of enforcement of the religious sections of the constitution is causing renewed excitement because of the announcement of the intention to close at an early date all schools violating the constitutional prohibition of religious instruction.

It is declared by the newspapers that from 140 to 150 Catholic schools, in which there are 8,000 pupils, may be closed in Mexico City, but these figures have not been verified.

The government's announcement says the authorities intend to carry out a strict inspection of schools, closing all where religious instruction is given. The pupils of such schools will be transferred to government schools, "where they will be given first-class education without religious features."

Veterans' Bureau Asks Coal Bids.

Veterans' bureau hospitals will use 226,000 tons of coal next year. This was disclosed yesterday when the bureau called for bids for 8,000 tons of anthracite and 218,000 tons of bituminous. Bids will be opened at the bureau, here, May 15. The coal will be distributed to hospitals throughout the country.

THANK you for your nice letter, Mrs. K. It is, as I have said many times, a pleasure and a satisfaction to know that our efforts are not in vain and that they are appreciated. Indeed I do know that we have many friends for whom we hear from those friends each day and this surprise of ours, with which I am literally about to burst, will, I think, express to these friends of the column infinitely better than words, our appreciation of their interest, their cooperation and their good will.

There are several letters to be answered through the column this morning, but I should like first to ask that the readers who write us sign their name to their communication. A letter that is worth an answer is certainly worth a signature and I personally consider the waste basket the suitable place for an unsigned letter. There have been very few of these letters I am happy to say, but today's mail brought two of them to my desk. One of the writers was afraid that she might be "annoyed" if she gave her name. On the contrary, the Housekeeper is as happy to be of service to a reader as she is to be of service to a regular subscriber. There is no distinction in homemakers—their needs are the same the world over. If one does not wish one's name used it is necessary only to add a line to that effect, but spare me, please, the dissatisfaction of picking up a letter robbed of its personality because of its lack of a name, and spare me, too, the unpleasant task of relegating it to the depths of my waste paper basket.

Thank you, Mrs. T., for telling me about your "hot steam slaw." It sounds delicious—I am going to try it and print it in the very near future. Of course I shall be delighted to have some of your recipes, please do send them.

We do not pay for recipes, M. R. T., except as a prize is offered in a contest. If you were submitting your recipe for the consideration of "Dear Sir" (though I know you see that in view, we can't, you see, do anything about it). Enter the contest—send us an unusual cake or pie recipe—the prize is well worth the effort.

We are mailing your recipe today, Mrs. Harrison. May I suggest that you paste your clippings into a scrap book. They are so small and hard to keep, and it is but a moments work to paste them in a book under the proper heading.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

MIXED DIETS.

DR. SHERMAN quotes Dr. Park as having written: "If pregnant women received ample, well-balanced diets, in which green vegetables were abundantly supplied and cow's milk was regularly taken, and if they were kept in the open air and sun, and their infants were placed in the direct rays of the sun for a part of each day, and were fed cod liver oil for the first two or three years of their lives, more would be accomplished in regard to the eradication of cavities of the teeth than in all other ways put together and rickets would be abolished from the earth."

With all this, Sherman and his associates agree in the main. This statement was made three years ago and, at that time, cod liver oil was about the only radiated food known to man. Since then the method of radiating food has been discovered and it is known that many, if not most, foods can be radiated. In fact, most of the ordinary foods grown in the sunlight are radiated by act of nature. Even if a cow be kept in a dark barn her milk can be made all right by either radiating the cow, or radiating her milk.

With respect to the foods which cause or prevent rickets, Sherman thinks we have been too anxious. He thinks this is especially true of our reaction to the study of oatmeal and other cereals in respect to rickets. He says: "What difference does it make if rats, kept on a cereal diet, did develop rickets—that is, what difference does it make so far as human beings are concerned? Humans get enough sunlight to prevent them from having rickets in almost all places. In the second place, human beings eat a mixed diet. Nobody lives on oatmeal alone. The average human diet contains enough protection against rickets. Whatever shortcoming oatmeal may have in this particular, is supplied by the other foods found in the dietary."

Both of these statements in substance are found in the Millanby report. The bakers make the same statement with reference to the breads made with milk. The milk supplies the ingredients the flour is short on.

The mixed, varied American diet is generally ample for all purposes. There are few deficiency diseases among those who eat it.

EVE IN PARIS

Dear Claribel: This time I'm sending you nothing but news from the millinery front. Truly, it seems to me that tout Paris is divided into a faction that wears "Casquette de Polignac," the hat that I've sketched sideview for you, and another faction that wears by "Paris," the hat I've shown from the front. Reboux made them both, of course.

Which do I wear? "Paris," I think it's easier on the average face. I do believe, though, that you need to have height to wear it well. The brim isn't stiff, and the dents in the crown at the edge make it more generally becoming than Reboux's old high square crowns. In fact, I find my own quite flattering.

As for "Casquette," it seems to look best on women with small features and rather piquant faces. Even quite short people can wear it, and it certainly has a very new line.

My third sketch I send rather as a news item than a fashion note. Susanne Talbot is mad about the Egyptian influence, and she makes these queer hooded things for both day and evening wear. This one is the top of a red velvet cape and has glints of gold about it, to be worn over a white satin dress trimmed with gold. Of course, one would have to be a decided exotic to attempt it—and I'm not! As ever, EVE.

JUST FOLKS

THRILLS.

I hear some pleasure-seeker say: "I haven't had a thrill today." So much of late the word is used, by many a careless lip abused, that some, I fear, begin to think a thrill is only born of drink. Or bordering so close to sin. That dizzy heads must topple in.

Now thrills there are of various kinds. To suit the many sorts of minds. And one can feel his pulses beat with pleasure gloriously sweet. For life is not so flat and tame. That thrills must only come from shame.

For many a thrill of splendor springs From beautiful and lovely things. I've felt my pulses thrill to see The blossoms on an apple tree; The martins back once more to take The house I've reared for friendship's sake.

A robin on my window sill Gives me a summer morning thrill; While every friend along the way Always has something new to say.

I feel a tingle of delight To romp with those I love at night. With my baby's laughing eyes A thrill that's most entrancing lies. I need no stimulus to see The joy of life, whatever it be; So many charms God's bounty spills, I'd say the world is full of thrills.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES McDONALD

Does Your Husband Grouch?

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am very much interested in "Grandfather's" viewpoint on the male grouch and am sure that he has endeavored to give him justice as he sees it. Having been called a grouch in his day, he no doubt feels sympathy for those whom he thinks are misunderstood and are not really grouches.

Well, surely the grouch needs to be understood and in some cases defended, perhaps, and "Grandfather" admits there are grouches and grouches. Now that grandfather is older and the cause of his so-called grouches a thing of the past, he no doubt has them no more and is a ray of sunshine at the breakfast hour.

One of the points I wish to make is that his "silence" during those breakfast-lunch hours did cause unhappiness in his family, particularly with his girls, who dubbed him a grouch. And there grandfather was wrong. I think I can write with understanding because I am a mother and a wife, who has lived with a grouchy husband for many years. That is the reason grandfather's so-called grouches to me were too mild to be so termed.

I do hope that other wives, who are experienced in handling the grouchy husband will write and tell us if she has found a permanent cure for the real thing, "a chronic grouch."

Of course, any man or woman has times of depression and silent periods. The world surely needs more silent periods these days, but I refer to an entirely different problem any wife who has experienced these "times" know just what I mean.

I am afraid dear grandfather does not really know much about the real chronic grouch when he says that he will be cured if he finds his ill temper and general cussedness are making no impression. This treatment of ignoring the grouch and refraining from irritating him while allowing him to fight it out entirely without help or hindrance from anybody may work sometimes with some grouches. Indeed, there is very little else that will help at all, if any, but I do know that even the above treatment does not work a cure in some cases. I know a man who began his married life by grousing for a day, then three days of a week until now, after fifteen years of marriage, his grouches last for weeks and months sometimes. What else is there for those around him to do but ignore him and his gloom?

This can not be helped by words, or pleadings or notice of any kind. Good treatment has no effect on his ill-temper, good meals are wasted as far as he notices or appreciates, and meals he disapproves of are rewarded by a not a word, but by throwing his napkin on the table with a vicious fling and marching out the room. He scowls at everybody and barks at his children every in this mood.

Nothing pleases him, and he is sulky if he is ignored and also unreasonable in words and actions if he speaks at all. Yet this man is morally good and upright and pleasant to outsiders and entirely reasonable with them. His wife has tried everything to work a cure, but for the past few years has entirely ignored his grouches and gone her way as cheerfully as possible. The result is not as grandfather predicts, for in this case he is much worse than he has ever been in all his life. He is physically as well as the average man and has good habits otherwise. He has everything to make him content—not too much money—an attractive home, wife and fine children. His wife is a homemaker and good mother, but is interested in outside affairs also.

This man has a sister who says she also has a grouchy husband, but her husband allows her to grouch the worse she grows. She knows she is selfish at these times, admits it afterward, also knows she is slowly choking her husband's love to death, for he has told her she gains nothing by such action and loses much. She is struggling to overcome these ill-temper, but she says they come upon her and she finds it hard to control them. At all other times she is a wonderful companion and wife.

This man is a member of the same family as the other two grouches. I also know a woman who is very high strung who married a grouch, just an ordinary one whose spells last only from one to three days, yet she has attempted suicide once, left him once, but is now living with him, and is the finest of mothers to his three able youngsters. This man admits his faults, hates these spells, yet does not control them. Otherwise he is most lovable. This man also realizes he has influenced the disposition of one of his children, admits it, but still goes on his grouches at times.

I agree with grandfather that the insane chatter of some women is most exasperating, but I can at least see it as a "cloud lined with silver," for it springs from good will usually, yet a grouch is a "black cloud with a black lining," and seems decidedly unhealthy to all concerned, including its owner. One can run away from a chatterer, but tell me how one can run away from a grouch in the home and still keep the family together? To me, it is the grouch "who is the most insane thing" in our social structure. A FRIEND.

HIS MOTHER

Edited by Joseph Kaye.
THE MOTHER OF JUDGE BEN LINDSAY.

Judge Ben Lindsay, the famous judge of the famous Denver juvenile court, owes much to his mother for the work which has made him so distinguished. His mother taught him the principles of humanity and he has remembered them and put them to use for the welfare of mankind.

His father lost all he had in the civil war and came West to recuperate his fortunes. Circumstances were too much for him and he died, leaving his wife to bring up the family. Upon her and young Ben was thrown all the responsibility.

The family was in dire poverty and Ben had to go to work as a messenger boy; later he began the study of law but found himself in such circumstances that he once attempted to commit suicide. He was rescued by his mother.

But throughout it all his mother kept up his stamina and developed him into the remarkable man he is today.

It is also an odd coincidence that it was a mother who first actually moved him to undertake the work of reorganizing the legal punishments for juvenile delinquents. He had become a judge, and a young man was brought before him, charged with petty larceny. The evidence was all against the boy and Mr. Lindsay could do nothing but sentence him to jail.

When he had done so a disheveled woman rushed up to the bar and shrieked that the boy had only made a mistake, and that he was no criminal. The woman was the thief's mother. Her husband and her wild belief in her son moved the judge to profound pity. He called the boy back and took both him and his mother into his chambers for an intimate talk. The result was a suspended sentence and Mr. Lindsay made himself the boy's guardian.

The Denver juvenile court, which was established by Judge Lindsay, has revolutionized the treatment of juvenile delinquents, chiefly by humanizing their treatment and applying sympathetic understanding and probationary measures to the cases.

Miss Betty Baldwin Has Third Accident

London, April 16 (By A. P.).—Miss Betty Baldwin, debutante daughter of the British premier, believes accidents run in threes, and as she has recently had three, hopes to avoid any more for a long time. Miss Baldwin first hurt herself at tennis. Then she got into a taxicab smash and sustained a concussion. No sooner had she recovered than she narrowly missed being thrown out of another motor car in which she was rushing to catch a train.

28 Successful Years

THE PRIDE OF THE ALLEY

By N. BREWSTER MORSE.

Where Jack was born, they called him a good kid and let it go at that. Like Topsy, he just grew. At 6, he took to breaking windows. At 12, he was the leader of a gang of young rascals. At 16, he was the star of high school athletics. And at 23, we find him the hero of our story.

Of course, Jack has a job. He worked for a firm of office managers. At least, this was what he told people who asked him what business he was in. It seems that he was assistant to the assistant of the assistant office manager's assistant. Even at that, $40 a week was a lot of money and he knew it.

Jack didn't exactly like his job. Not that it annoyed him much, but still there were other things that he liked to do better. Among them he was numbered attending prize fights as an onlooker, cheering baseball games as an ardent fan and bowling as the local champion himself. Every one that came regularly to Tim Murphy's bowling alley had to bow out to Jack at least a dozen times, but seldom, if ever, succeeded in doing so.

The reason for this was quite apparent. Jack used to bowl as much with his head as with his arm. "Scientific" is the word which best describes his game. Fellows used to tell him that he had a "bowling mind." Whatever that was, so long as he won, Jack was glad that he had it.

One morning riding to work in the subway, Jack happened to read an editorial in his newspaper. This particular editorial said something to the general effect that all life was just a game and that if we would look upon the games we have to do and the everyday problems which confront us in the same spirit that we look upon the games we like to play, we would be better off.

There seemed to be logic there and it set Jack to thinking. The more he thought about it, the more he decided that in it was the right tip to guide him to success.

Life was a game . . . something like that the game he was considered a champion at. If he should start to consider his work in the light of bowling, perhaps he could win at that, too. He decided there was no time like the present to start.

At the office a big deal was pending. Not one of the office managers, assistant managers, or other wise seemed to see the way to put the deal over. They had given it a great deal of thought and had held conferences and discussed it to great length, but to date had made no progress worth mentioning. Jack decided to tackle the affair at once.

In the light of the newspaper editorial. He took the various problems that stood between the success of the deal and his firm, and set them up in his mind like so many tennis pins. Then, he took the ball of the concern's strength, prestige and responsibility in his right hand and started to bowl over the obstacles, one by one. As we mentioned before, Jack was quite some bowler. He arrived at the office and called all the managers together.

They listened to him in amazement. Jack had never seemed to have a practical business idea in his head up to this time. When he had finished, the manager shook his hand.

"You're right, Jack," he said, smiling. "That's the way to do it. The boss will be tickled pink when he hears about this."

After that, it was just natural, when important matters came up, to turn them over to Jack. The firm came to depend upon him and he went on playing the game, adding "strikes" after "strikes" to his record. One day, they called him in and made him a member of the firm. It was quietly done and no one talked much about it. He had earned the place and that was all there was to it.

In a short while, Tim Murphy's bowling alleys came to respect Jack as a man of wealth. He was on top, and when a fellow's up there, the rest of us have to look up to him. His game got better and better and his companions were delighted with the fact that his success had not gone to his head. He always has the "glad hand" and a smile for the least of them.

"You see, the big fellow over there," Tim used to smile while pointing him out to a newcomer. "He's as rich as a king . . . a big business man, mind you, and the best bowler that ever rolled a ball. Proud to have him here? Sure I am. Every one feels the same way about him. He's the pride of the alley!"

MODISH MITZI

Aunt Sophia is frowning over her accounts. The total seems impossible but not improbable. It's formidable. It's devastating. Where's the summer vacation that she was planning. Well, she will have to economize. Not another frock this season. The one she wears is a redingote style. The scarf collar is becoming.

Aunt Sophia Makes Both Ends Meet Anyway

Mitzi has lured Aunt Sophia shopping for her. Aunt Sophia, by the way is wearing a coat of charmeuse—navy blue—of course, because it is so smart. Long lines because they give a slender effect. Capes because they are exceedingly popular this season.

Mitzi is telling Aunt Sophia how good looking this frock of georgette will be on her. It's so smart, too, scallops and jumper are well combined—two popular features. Aunt Sophia has half a mind to try it on. Well, Mitzi makes up the other half and the dress is bought.

It has suddenly dawned upon Aunt Sophia that she has misused, nay, broken her resolution for economy. How will she make both ends meet? Dad, of course, saves the situation! He's just suggested that he send Mitzi (and Aunt Sophia, of course, must arrange to go with her) on a little trip abroad, or to Canada. Will she? Will she?

APOLLO STEAK HOUSES IN THE BEVERLY WYCK

Club Steak Is First in Opener

Stewards to Accept No More Entries of Care Free.

Munden Takes Riding Honors With Trio of Winners.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 16.—Apollo, a place, took a flash of speed that marks him as one of the best of the offspring of that horse, when he won the first of the three races today when he won the Beverly Wyck purse at a large field of 3-year-olds. He was much better than Weisheit to lead him under the wire by four lengths, while the favorite, Orestes II, was lucky to get third money.

Another development was in the first race when Club Steak, in the hands of J. P. Jones, beat fourteen other 2-year-olds in the opening race, and there was almost as many present as on the opening day. Good prices resulted in most of the events, and the favorites had a bad day.

THE day was the best for racing that has favored the Harford association track, and there was almost as many present as on the opening day. Good prices resulted in most of the events, and the favorites had a bad day.

Mrs. A. Alexander's gelding, Care Free, which at times races so brilliantly, and winner of 21 races last year, caused the stewards to issue an order forbidding his future entry at this track on account of a bad disposition. The son of Colin refused to run in the third race, in spite of all the urging of Chalmers.

The mayor of New Orleans, Arthur J. O'Keefe, with a party of friends and officials of the Southern city, honored the track by their presence today.

In the Beverly Wyck purse Apollo was backed heavily at the eleven-to-one odds, but he was not in the best condition, but Orestes II, an imported, was the post by W. R. Salter, an imported, held his position as favorite. Weisheit, ridden by McAttee, kept nearest the pace throughout and easily disposed of Orestes. Although eleven started, the others were never contenders.

Willie Munden was the star rider of the day, having the mounts on Leatherwood, Mabel C. and Duckling. Duckling, the seventh race winner, was ridden by Brotherton Love and Clearview.

THE Sagamore stable's True Day was the surprise winner of the first race, Espanol, the favorite, Eschequer, and Harry Carroll were the contenders to the head of the stretch, but Eschequer was the only one of these to finish in the race. Barney Wells, a long shot, coming in third.

Coltetti took True Day up in the stretch, and he caught Eschequer at the sixteenth, coming on to win by a half length. There was a confident plunge on Plain Dealer, but he was not in the best condition. He was backed from 12 to 1 to 4. The winner was 7 to 1.

Club Steak won the opening purse for maiden two-year-olds filled by ten lengths, leading all the way. Pyrex of the Harry Payne Whitney entry was second, and Lina Rinehart, coupled with Club Steak as the Falconer-Jones entry, was third.

Chalmers got away from the post quickly with Club Steak, who was well backed, and set up immediately so long a lead that the result was a foregone conclusion. The time was the fastest this year for half a mile, 47 1/2 seconds, the record being 47. A flashy field of fifteen went to the post. The Whitney entry was a strong favorite. Mabel C. won the second race, Espanol second and Best Shot third. This made a double for Munden. Care Free sulked, coming in last, far back. He was the odds-on favorite, Charlie and Sabaya, outsiders, showed speed in the early part of the six furlongs, but in the stretch Mabel C. came to the front and was drawing away at the end.

LEATHERWOOD, in the colors of Mrs. F. G. Bain, won the second race by two lengths. Carlton was second and Mose Rosedale third. Munden rode the winner. Well-finder set the pace until reaching the stretch, when Leatherwood easily took the lead. Carlton always was a contender.

After passing the wire, Leyland fell off Wellfinder, this being the second jockey of the day to take a tumble. L. Simon fell off of Munden during the running of the first race.

Roxana, which races for C. Smithson, won the sixth event at a mile and three-quarters. Lanoli, an outsider, was second, and Gray Gables, favorite, was third. Roxana, well up in the first half, came on to win, easily ridden by Froggatte. Minstrel was a contender into the stretch.

Two-dollar mares paid. Apollo, $7.50, $7.10, $5.10; Wadset, $7.20, $4.90; Grestie, 11, $3.80. Apollo, entering the race from the break, drew away with ease. Wadset broke slowly, where he was taken to the outside, closed with a rapid onset. Grestie 11 was the leader all day stage and was firing last sixteenth. Top tip showed lot of early speed.

the outside, Irish-made of courage and just managed to get up in the closing stages and was running in hand until final furlong, when he began to weaken. Barrow on back straddled and of the turns.

Without effort at the end, Lancelotti broke. Went to the front with a rush and drew away from the field. He won the race in 1:44 1/2, and was the only one to touch the stretch.
SEVENTH RACE. Mile, final drive. Shanghai used up making the pace.

COLLYER'S COMMENT

on the

SPORT of KINGS

BY HENRY F. COLLYER

ROCKMAN.

This is a red-headed mama and a hotsy totsy combined. When the smoke of battle clears away there will be enough patrons in line to keep the cashiers at the "craw" busy all afternoon. All this takes place in the second symposium. ROCKMAN.

is coupled with CHOCOLATE SOLDIER, the Sagamore stable entry, but forget all about any chocolate soda water.

Twenty named to start in the opening heat and it should be 10 to 1 and take your pick.

MUSKALLONGE can carry weight well and looks as though he is entitled to first call, but this is certainly a good one to pass along to your neighbor.

After Rockman gets through winning the second event SENATOR NORRIS will come along and beat his field in the Eclipse purse just as though he had no opposition.

He is the only one of the bunch who is a sprinter in the race, and the only one who should be a good one.

Crown, the race-knave, Supervisor, Leslie Kripp, the race-knave, James early, Freddie Twenty-one are named for the Aberdeen stakes, a juvenile, POLARIS, who is the favorite and seems entitled to the call. He is unquestionably a high-class colt and will be hard to beat. The Whitney is a consolation affair, featuring two good ones who sported in MINIATOR and WITCHERY. The former is the best of this pair.

SHILOH, who has been dropped out of the Everglades, is the feather in his back. All his recent efforts go for Mr. Sweeney, the agent who manipulates the morose. If there is a change of ownership,

Fourth race—Six fms. Grey Rock, Rose Rock, WITCHERY, MINIATOR, SHILOH, POLARIS, WITCHERY, SHILOH, WITCHERY,

One gait race—Will be a case of Katie. OPPERMA probably ran himself last Saturday.	Greenwood.
One gait race as good as another for the sixth race, a claiming affair at a mile and one eighth. OPPERMA will have my usual two-top riding on DUCKWOOD .	Seventh race—Mercurio, Wilmer the Wizard, Wizard.
HAYVE DE GRACE.	Basin—Green race.
First race—Duchess, Golden Wanderer, Lord Baltimore II.	TUAREZ.
Second race—Sugamore Stable entry, Ditzz Blomde, Adria.	First race—J. A. Bonadinas, Pignio, Little Emma.
Third race—Solonah Norris, Top Best, General Fincher.	Second race—Marcella Boy, Lorena L. C. Lombardi.
Fourth race—Polonah B. P. Whitney entry, Sugamore Stable entry.	Third race—Dodie Adams, Clet G. Battle.
Fifth race—Shoofly, Lord of the Storm, Sixth race—Duckwood, Diagram, Golden Bill.	Fourth race—Dan Hogan, Eleanor W. Canvas Back.
	Fifth race—Jones Stock Farm entry, The Falcorn, Faddist.
	Sixth race—Kean, Sweet and Low, Linda Zloda.
	Seventh race—Little Hawk, Woodcay, Servitor.

FRANK GATES

Seventh race—Dream of the Valley, Quaker Hen, Ed Pendleton.

Yesterday's SUPER OCCASIONAL WON AGAIN. He is a real horse, and a real FACT that it would win, so it hardly seems necessary to tell you that he is a real occasional goes on Monday and of course, it will be a real horse.

NOW GATHER CLOSER

My $25 wire today goes in the first race. I am sure that it will be a real horse, and a real FACT that it would win, so it hardly seems necessary to tell you that he is a real occasional goes on Monday and of course, it will be a real horse.

THE GUMPS

LOOK AT OLD RUP-VAN-WINKLE—JUST DOWN FROM THE MOUNTAINS—MAYBE HE THINKS THIS IS THE VILLAGE OF FALLING WATER—I'D LIKE TO HEAR HIM TELL ABOUT THE GOOD OLD DAYS WHEN HE AND KING TUT WERE ROOM-MATES—IT'S DARN NICE OF THAT CADDIE TO LOAN THE OLD GUY A CANE TO LEAN ON—

OH BOY! HE'S GOING TO TRY AND HIT ONE—THERE HE IS, OLD FLAMING YOUTH—IF HE PUTS ALL HIS MANLY STRENGTH AND VIGOR INTO THAT SHOT I'LL BET HE KNOCKS THAT BALL AT LEAST TWO YARDS—THEN HIS NURSE CAN PUT HIM BACK IN HIS WHEEL CHAIR AND FISH HIM BACK TO THE CLUB HOUSE—

LOOK AT THAT DRIVE—HE MUST BE SCOTCH—THEY PLAY A GOOD GAME UNTIL THEY'RE A HUNDRED YEARS OLD—THEN THEY BECOME PROFESSIONALS—IF HE CAN DRIVE LIKE THAT AT HIS AGE WHAT A WALLOP HE MUST HAVE HAD WHEN HE WAS TWENTY-ONE—I'LL BET HE COULD TEE OFF PIKE'S PEAK AND MAKE THE GRAND CANYON IN FOUR—

Baby tortured by skin trouble

Completely restored to health by Resinol

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—"My baby was suffering from an irritated skin which several salves I tried would not heal. After using two jars of Resinol Ointment, her skin was completely restored to its healthy condition. I will no longer be without Resinol and after my experience, I will gladly say that it is all you claim it to be and will highly recommend its use for even the tenderest skin." (Signed) Mrs. E. W. PROSECUTION FAILS TO OBTAIN JURORS TO TRY WAN CASE

900 Citizens Have Been Summoned to Appear for Service.

GOVERNMENT EXHAUSTS 13 OF 20 CHALLENGES

Defense Had Been Satisfied With 12 Men Already Selected at Third Trial.

The murder trial of Ziang Sun Wan, which began in criminal court six days ago, was adjourned yesterday to Monday without a jury having been selected.

A new venire of 900 men was ordered by Justice Adolph Hoehling in adjourning the trial, marking the third time he has been forced to take such an action. The second venire was exhausted yesterday afternoon.

Including the 300 ordered to appear Monday, a total of 900 citizens have been summoned as jurors in this third trial. Some of those summoned could not be found or were unable to respond. Others were disqualified because of age, voting status, connection with the government or on other grounds.

176 Men Are Excused.

Approximately 176 men have been excused after having qualified as jurors. The majority of them either had read about the case and had formed an opinion, or were opposed to capital punishment or circumstantial evidence in such a case. The government's testimony is of a circumstantial nature.

Wilton J. Lambert and Rudolph H. Yeatman, counsel for Wan, announced four times yesterday that they were satisfied with the 12 men in the jury box. Each time, however, United States Attorney Peyton Gordon and Assistant United States Attorney George D. Horning, Jr., challenged one of the jurors and had him removed.

Each side is entitled to 20 peremptory challenges. So far, the government has exercised 13 challenges, and the defense nine.

Busy Hunting Talesmen.

United States marshals were busy yesterday afternoon and last night canvassing the city for the 300 talesmen ordered for Monday by Justice Hoehling.

Ziang Sun Wan, who is charged with killing Ben Sen Wu, one of the victims of the triple murder here in 1919, has been following closely the efforts of the attorneys to impasse a jury. He has a good command of English, and is able to understand almost everything that is said in the courtroom.

Extra Postal Clerks Are Not to Benefit

The railway postal clerks assigned to the Washington terminal postoffice to handle the Christmas mails are not entitled to extra compensation or an extra day off on account of their working December 26 last, according to a ruling yesterday by Comptroller General McCarl.

Army Waiting Lists Of Recruits Ordered

Army recruiting having been suspended, the War Department yesterday notified all corps commanders to provide waiting lists of applicants. Recently the army reached its authorized pay strength of 118,000 and orders were issued restricting recruiting activities.

Food Conference Will Open Today

A conference to determine what American families are eating will start this morning in the Department of Agriculture. It will be known as the Conference on Food Habits and will be attended by 25 prominent nutrition experts, dietitians, agriculturists and economists.

Rockville Marriage Licenses.

Licenses have been issued by the clerk of the circuit court in Rockville, for the marriage of Joseph Allan, 22 years old, and Miss Priscilla V. Gumar, 22 years old, both of Washington; Elmer F. Sutphin, 21 years old, and Miss Mary E. McIntosh, 21 years old, both of Seat Pleasant, Md.; and Robert Ames Pistole, 21 years old, and Miss Mary Frances Harrison, 18 years old, both of Cherrydale, Va.

Lumber Co. Wins Action.

Justice Siddons in equity court yesterday declined to appoint a receiver for the Elsieger Mill & Lumber Co. and discharged a rule issued against this concern and its president, Walter G. Elsieger. The request for the receiver was made by William C. Elsieger, nephew of the defendant Elsieger. Attorney Mark Stearnman appeared for the concern and its president.

Navy Flier Reported In Critical Condition

Lieut. Frank W. Wead, U. S. N., formerly stationed here with the flight division, bureau of aeronautics, Navy Department, is reported unofficially as being in a critical condition at his home at Coronado, Calif., as the result of a fall down a flight of stairs Tuesday. He sustained a fractured neck and an operation was performed Wednesday to save his life.

Lieut. Wead holds jointly with Lieut. John Dale Price the distance record for seaplanes which was made at Anacostia. He had charge of the navy racing team which went to England in 1923 and won the first leg of the Schneider international trophy. He came to Washington in 1923 and left in October, 1924, with the aircraft carrier Langley, returning here several times afterward for temporary duty.

350 TREES PLANTED IN WOMEN'S HONOR

Memorial Avenue Is Set Out Along Bladensburg Road by Federation.

A memorial avenue of 350 trees was planted yesterday morning on the Bladensburg road from the District line to Fifteenth and H streets northeast, by various organizations in the District Federation of Women's Clubs. Each tree is in memory of a woman. With appropriate ceremonies 65 were dedicated yesterday.

Mrs. Eva C. E. Chase, chairman of the conservation committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, was in charge of the proceedings. Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parking, presented the trees to the conservation committee. Maj. Raymond A. Wheeler, assistant engineer commissioner, and D. C. Carter, acting forester of the Department of Agriculture, spoke on the fine work done by the organization in making this beautiful avenue of trees.

Trees were dedicated to Frances Willard, Susan B. Anthony, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, Vinnie Ream Hoxie, Mrs. Hester Poole, the oldest living clubwoman in the country; Mrs. Mary Sherman, Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Mrs. Myra McCoy Andrews and others.

Abolition of Parking Light Rule Is Urged

Proposals to abolish the traffic regulation requiring lights on all cars parked at night was contained in numerous letters sent to Director of Traffic M. O. Eldridge, who called on the public for help when directed by Commissioner Pennington to compile a list of sections of the traffic code he could get along without. Another suggestion was one that the congested area where one-hour parking only is permitted be restricted in area and that parking be unrestricted in the rest of the city. Many of the letters contained suggestions that made it hard for the director to determine whether they were feasible or serious. One correspondent wanted all pedestrians to be required to wear light colored clothing at night so autoists could see them easily.

Gas Company Wants Higher Container

The Washington Gas Light Co. has applied to District authorities for permission to double the capacity of one of its big containers at its plant, Twelfth and M streets southeast. The tank now holds 1,250,000 cubic feet of gas and when filled, is 71 feet high. It is desired to enlarge it so that it will be 130 feet high when extended. Application was made yesterday to the zoning commission to rezone the property where the gas plant stands to permit erection of structures 130 feet high. The zoning body referred the request to the public utilities commission for a "certificate of public convenience and necessity." If this is forthcoming, the zoning commission will consider the application.

Government Seeks to Recover $25,000

The United States government filed suit yesterday in circuit court against Wallace Jenkins, David G. Oppenheimer and the National Surety Co. to recover $25,000 which is alleged to be due on a bond underwritten by the surety company in favor of the other two defendants.

Property Owners Sue Government

Charles C. Clark, Eugene B. Clark and Ezra W. Clark, who say they are the owners of property within the limits of Anacostia park, filed suit yesterday in the District court of the United States against the United States for a judgment for $2,203.84, a sum representing the value of the land below the high water mark which the plaintiffs say was taken from them without due process of law.

According to the petition presented for the plaintiffs by Attorneys Adkins, Nesbitt and Simon, the government took by condemnation proceedings under the authority of appropriation bills certain land above the high water mark but failed to secure authorization for the taking of land below the high water mark.

ARMY TANK SCHOOL WILL GO TO GEORGIA

To Be Moved From Camp Meade to Fort Benning in Near Future.

The tank school is to be moved from Camp Meade, Md., to Fort Benning, Ga., Secretary of War Davis having approved the plan. The plan to make the tank school a part of the infantry school at Fort Benning was under consideration by the War Department for several months. No change will take place until accommodations can be provided at Fort Benning, and the transfer will not alter to great extent the construction program at Camp Meade. Eleven officers and practically 125 enlisted men will change station. Units to remain at Camp Meade are Headquarters first tank group, Sixteenth light tank battalion, Seventeenth heavy tank battalion, Twenty-first tank maintenance company and school for tankers and cooks.

PARKWAY WIDENING PLANS CONSIDERED

Development of Piney Branch and Kingle Ford Before Commission.

Plans for the development of Piney Branch and Kingle Ford areas from Tiger bridge across Piney branch on Sixteenth street to Fourteenth street and north to Walter Reed hospital, are now being considered by the National Capital park commission and the commission of fine arts.

Efforts may be made to obtain enough land on the Sixteenth street extension for a parkway 300 feet wide from the District line to a point a half mile south. The parkway, as contemplated now, would be in the center of this main entrance to the city from the north. Discussion of these plans follows that of the last meeting of the fine arts commission and definite action might be expected by the next meeting of the fine arts commission April 29.

BUILDINGS BILL WINS IN SENATE TEST VOTE

Passage of $50,000,000 Measure Indicated; Court Structure Asked.

The public buildings bill, carrying an appropriation of $50,000,000 for building here, was taken up in the Senate yesterday, a test vote indicating that it will be passed with a margin of several votes.

Only eighteen negative votes were cast against calling up the bill. It remained as the unfinished business for today.

Senator Moses, New Hampshire, introduced an amendment providing that a new Supreme Court building be erected immediately out of the local funds. The building would be in accordance with sketches prepared by the late Henry Brown. Several other amendments are pending, but the Senate did not progress to a vote on them.

Burglar in 5 Entries Takes Nothing Away

Police of the Ninth precinct are searching for a burglar who forced his way into three private residences and two warehouses in Northeast Washington Thursday night and left each place without disturbing anything.

The houses entered by the burglar were occupied by Ely H. Griffin, 834 Bladensburg road, northeast; John Thomas, 830 Bladensburg road, and William Smith, 1492 H street northeast. The warehouse of the Heiden, Reich & Bros., at 818 Bladensburg road, and the Dicky Brothers, Inc., at 1447 Maryland avenue northeast, were entered.

Jail Sentence Given on Bad Check Charge

Charles W. Rowlands was sentenced to serve ten months in jail yesterday by Justice Hoehling in Criminal court on a charge of false pretenses following the overruling of a motion for a new trial. The indictment charges that Rowlands obtained $75 on a worthless check from a local bank on December 14 last. The defendant was granted new trials in three other such cases.

Lee Cumberland was sent to jail for one year on a charge of robbery. The indictment alleged that he participated in the robbery of Wilson C. Davis on September 20 last, in which Wilson lost $53 and some jewelry.

Sues to Dismiss Action.

Granville C. Bradford, real estate broker, who was sued by his wife Mrs. Betty B. Bradford, former actress, to recover $7,960 on a promissory note, filed a motion yesterday in circuit court through his counsel Henry M. Fowler to dismiss his wife's suit on the ground that he was adjudged a bankrupt after making the note. The defendant has since been discharged from bankruptcy.

COMMUNISTS TEACH PRINCIPLES IN U.S. COLLEGES, CHARGED

Dames of Loyal Legion Told Agents of Socialism Spread Doctrine.

SEEMS TO DESTROY HOME. GEN. FRIES DECLARES

Members of Congress Are Hardest Working People, Says Mrs. Kahn.

The growth of communistic teaching in the colleges of the United States has reached an alarming state, delegates to the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the National Society of Dames of the Loyal Legion were told yesterday in their closing session at the Washington hotel.

"It is not easy to comprehend the activity of agents of socialism and communism in colleges," Mrs. Virginia White Speel, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs of the District, averred. She urged the delegates to do everything in their power to defeat the propaganda.

Declared Danger to Home.

At a banquet last night Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service, declared that communistic teaching, which he explained, is persistently prosecuted in this country, aims not only at the destruction of the American government, but the home itself, and all belief in Deity. He urged the women to use their political influence in defeating it.

Representative Florence Prag Kahn, of California, said that undue and harping criticism of Congress and censures in "the form of jokes" tended to the same disloyalty which is being taught by radicals. She added:

"Your loyalty should find you standing up for your own government, for you are the government, and as you make it, so it is." She declared that members of Congress are among the hardest workers in the world.

Civil War Speeches Cited.

Rear Admiral P. F. Harrington, commander in chief of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, conjured up the past in quotations from speeches delivered about the time of the civil war. He declared that "the courage of the Confederate soldier is worthy of commendation, but it should not be enshrined with money contributed by the United States government."

He was cheered when he said "the doctrine of secession shall not be grafted on our nation." Speakers who followed him, however, averred that there are now no sectional lines.

The society in the closing session passed a resolution aimed at the defeat of the bill for the restoration of the Lee mansion as a shrine to Robert E. Lee. The resolution requested that the mansion not be refurbished, but that it be converted into a nonsectarian chapel for the cemetery.

Officers Elected.

Officers were elected without a contest despite the fact that the press was excluded in anticipation of a "fight." Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, of Washington, was re-elected president. Other officers chosen were: Mrs. Albert G. Mang, of Chicago, senior vice president; Miss Mary R. Lacey, of Detroit, junior vice president; Miss Marian Hill, of Washington, national recorder; Mrs. John R. Hoffman, of Chicago, national registrar; Mrs. Thomas Biddle Ellis, of Philadelphia, national treasurer; Mrs. Julia T. Bodfish, of Washington, national historian; and Mrs. Isabella M. Boniface, of Washington, national chancellor.

Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, commander of the American troops in Europe during the war, and now managing director of Lincoln Memorial university in Harrogate, Tenn., told of the work of the university, and urged that the delegates assist in the work of educating the youths of mountain section in which Lincoln grew to manhood. The society aims to build a "practice house" for girls in the university.

$48,367.56 Income Of Traction Company

The Capital Traction Co. submitted its monthly financial report for February to the public utilities commission yesterday. Net income for the month was $48,367.56.

Total operating revenues were $358,737.13, while operating expenses were $252,575.67. Taxes amounted to $30,866.62. Operating income, the difference between revenue and expenses, was named as $75,294.94. Other income of $313.02 was noted, making gross income $76,607.96, from which deductions of $27,240.40 left the net income as stated.

Damages Are Asked.

The Merchants Transfer & Storage Co. was sued yesterday in circuit court for $10,100 damages by Frank S. Marshall, of Cherrydale, Va., for alleged injuries to himself and damage to his motorcycle. Through attorneys Dickey and Kriz the plaintiff says that on November 16 last his motorcycle was struck by a truck belonging to the defendant and that it was damaged and his motorcycle was destroyed.

Man Accidentally Shot.

Joag Francis, colored, 38 years old, 2811 Dumbarton avenue northwest, told police yesterday that while he was getting some money out of his trunk at his home he accidentally pulled the trigger of a revolver in the trunk and shot himself through his hand. He was treated at Georgetown hospital. His condition is not serious.
